CHURCHILL, FDR WAITING MOSCOW WORD

Meet 'Semi-Socially' To Talk Political Issues That Arise From War.

STALIN STILL MUM

Russian Capital Gives No Hint on Reaction To Repeated Invitations To Confer.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — In the easy atmosphere of a semi-social visit Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt settled down to a discussion of war-generated political problems today while official Washington awaited some on-the-record response from Russia to Anglo-American overtures for a three-power conference this year.

Despite all that the president and the prime minister have said about meeting Russia there still was no indication from Moscow as to whether the suggestion was considered favorably there, nor was there much concrete evidence in Washington thus far of success in arranging a preliminary get-together of top diplomats of the three governments.

The need for closer coordination among the three most powerful Allied nations thus remained the number one political problem pointed up by the recent Anglo-American conference in Quebec and obviously held open for further discussion in Washington.

Mr. Churchill arrived from Quebec late yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Churchill and his staff. The only function immediately announced for his entertainment was an informal family dinner at the White House last night.

After dinner, Mr Roosevelt and his guest talked in the president's study until 1 p. m. this morning and the president left most of his work day free for further conferences

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said that regular routine had been discarded so that the president and Prime Minister could talk whenever they felt like it.

Mr. Roosevelt had only two appointments today, with Brazil's war minister, General Eurico Gaspar at noon and with his cabinet at 2 p. m

Churchill had an appointment with General George C Marshall, army chief of staff, around noon.

Moore Elected to Head Legion Post, Succeeding Lister

An infantry sergeant in World war I, Russell E. Moore, 407 Hammond avenue, was elected commander of McVey Post No. 15 American Legion last night to succeed C. O. Lister, who has held the office the past year

Moore is senior vice commander commanding officer of Legion cadet corps, judge advocate of Alfred Harrington Post, Veterans of Foreign wars, and commander of chapter 21 Disabled Veterans of America.

Other officers named included James Brownscombe, senior vice-commander; John W. Graham, junior vice-commander; R. W. Jones, adjutant; William Schnug, finance officer; Rev. Grover Swoyer and Rev. Peter Young, chaplains; John Stout, historian; Walter Hill, sergeant-at-arms.

New officers will be installed Sept. 15 and will take office Oct. 1.

Lister was elected to a five-year term on the home building company board succeeding James F. Carrigan whose term expired.

Tavern Operators Warned About Overcharge on Bottled Beer.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The state OPA office today warned tavern operators against exceeding the ceiling prices on bottled beer.

Numerous complaints have been received, it was said. The ceiling price is either one-half cent more per twelve-ounce bottle than the price of Oct. 1 to 15, 1941, or one-quarter cent more than the price of March, 1942.

LONDON —(INS)— A Swiss radio broadcast said today that Rome underwent an air raid alarm at noon yesterday just before the pope's broadcast on the fourth anniversary of the war.

Lamb, Mutton, Beef Point Cost Reduced Beginning Next Sunday, But Ration Value of Butter Goes Up to 12

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The Office of Price Administration, moving in the face of a seasonal improvement in the meat situation but a continued slump in butter production, today ordered the ration cost of 35 meat cuts reduced by one to two points and the value of creamery buttery raised from 10 to 12 points per pound.

The point changes, which will be in effect from Sept. 5 through Oct. 2, were dictated by what OPA officials described as "the best meat picture since rationing began and a serious butter outlook."

Downward revisions also were ordered in consumer point values of 19 kosher meat items. In both programs only one meat item—veal sweetbreads—showed an increase.

All lamb and mutton items, with the exception of breast and flank, and some variety meats, were ordered reduced by one point. Also cut one point were beef rib cuts—roast and steak—and sirloin steak, along with a few pork items.

Most bacon cuts were ordered reduced by two points.

Placed on the point table for the first time were canned fish products which contain more than 20 per cent of rationed fish, such as sandwich spreads and fish paste. They will cost 12 points.

OPA officials said that the meat revisions were made possible by prospects that the nation's meat stores would have about 7 per cent more meat in September than in August. They emphasized, however, that this seasonal improvement would not permit substantial reductions in all meat point values.

The civilian supply of pork in September, it was said, is expected to be about 13 per cent above that available in August and 5 per

PROPOSES LEVY TO HELP FIGHT ON DELINQUENCY

City Recreation Board Votes To Submit .2 Mill Tax To Keep Youths Entertained.

Initial steps toward combatting Mansfield's juvenile delinquency problem on an extensive scale were taken last night when the City Recreation board voted to submit a special levy to Mansfield voters at the election Nov. 2.

Taking the stand that "something must be done and done quickly" to set up a program for teen-age youngsters to keep them from becoming involved in delinquency, always on the increase in war time, the board voted unanimously to submit the tax levy.

It proposed a levy of two-tenths of a mill which would produce a yearly revenue of approximately $12,200. The levy would run for a period of five years.

Legislation necessary to have the question placed on the ballot is to be prepared and submitted to city council in time for its next meeting Tuesday, Sept. 7.

In discussing the proposal last night, recreation board members decided that several neighborhood centers offering various forms of entertainment as well as constructive recreation projects hold the key to curbing the delinquency problem.

The board's discussions also emphasized that the program would be designed to appeal to all youngsters and not just those who become involved in juvenile troubles.

The Junior Association of Commerce, which has taken a leading role in the current effort to combat juvenile delinquency, drew high praise for its effort from the board members.

"The J. A. C. project will help

IT BACK-FIRED

Girls Who Pose as Red Cross Helpers Get Caught.

Suspicious Mansfield housewives were calling the local Red Cross office yesterday to verify the story of two little girls that they were soliciting funds for that organization and today the girls were in the hands of juvenile authorities.

The girls, 11 and 13 years of age, said they thought up the scheme as a means of securing spending money for themselves. What they didn't count on is that someone would doubt their story and check it.

According to juvenile authorities this is a second offense for the 13-year-old who last spring solicited orders and money for Girl Scout cookies. At that time the girl was apprehended, put on probation and made to pay back the money she had obtained.

Berlin Learns What London Blitz Was Like

Raids of the magnitude of the German blitz on London in 1940—but quadrupled in size—now are wrecking large sections of Berlin, as the RAF's heaviest bombers carry out night assaults. An idea of the damage caused in the German capital can be gleaned from this photo, received from an Axis source, which shows Germans attempting to clear the streets of heaps of debris from wrecked buildings after one of the most recent raids.

CORN'S HIGH SO ESCAPES GO ON

Two More Walk Away From OSR Fields Under Cover of Head-High Stalks.

The tall corn in fields around Mansfield may be the pride of farmers, but it's a headache for Supt. Arthur L Glattke of the Mansfield reformatory who today said the protection the corn offers inmates had enabled eight to escape in the past 10 days.

Two more youths who fled from a reformatory farm gang yesterday afternoon near Five Points were captured by guards about 6 p. m. yesterday along the Erie tracks east of where they were working.

Supt. Glattke said the youths, Raymond Meyer, 22, and Edward Collier, 18, members of a reformatory straw bailing crew Meyer entered the institution June 17, 1941, from Brown county to serve 10 to 25 years for armed robbery. Collier was sentenced from Hamilton county last Jan 22 to serve from one year to age for burglary.

STILL IN ROME

Nazis Hang Around Open City, Vatican Concerned.

MADRID—(UP)—Luigi Cardinal Maglione, papal secretary of state, was reported by reliable sources today to have informed Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio of Italy that the Vatican was concerned over the continued presence of Germans in Rome.

Maglione was said to have reminded Badoglio that Rome cannot be made an open city unless the Italian government, German embassy and German civilians are evacuated. While German uniformed troops have left the capital, reliable quarters said some 5,000 troops changed into civilian clothes and refused to budge.

A Lisbon dispatch revealed that Enrico Galeazzi, governor general of Vatican City, was in the Portuguese capital awaiting Clipper transportation to the United States. He refused to talk to newspapermen.

War or No War, Annual Tournament Gets Under Way at Westbrook Today.

By REX HESS

WESTBROOK COUNTRY CLUB—Wars may come and wars may go but they don't stop the states senior golfers.

Having adopted the Westbrook club years ago as the scene of their annual set-to, members of the Ohio Senior Golfers association were back here today to stage their annual tournament — one that even the destruction of the club by fire a couple years ago couldn't halt.

Where 97 golfers took to the rolling fairways of this pretty fair test for any golfer a year ago, there were 117 oldsters on hand today for the start of the 36-hole battle for laurels and proof that age doesn't dim a keen eye for a putt.

Among those present and hopeful of repeating his feat of last year was Joe Wells, East Liverpool, defending champion,

7,500 Yanks Die In Sicily, War's Total Near 20,000

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Army losses in the 38-day conquest of Sicily numbered 7,500 killed, wounded and missing to bring the army's over-all war losses to 70,872 and lift the announced casualties for the armed services and merchant marine to 105,446 since Pearl Harbor.

The latest army figures were given at a press conference today by John J. McCloy, assistant secretary of war. He said that of the 70,872 casualties in all combat zones, 9,209 were killed in action or died of wounds, 20,159 were wounded,

SOLDIERS HELD

Two Men, AWOL, Linked By Police to Akron Murder.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Detectives today arrested two soldiers AWOL from service, as suspects in the murder of David McKinley Hunter, 21, found slain near Akron July 30.

Police said they believed Hunter, the son of a prominent real estate dealer, was murdered because he had threatened to talk about robberies committed by a gang of which he was a member.

POLL DISCLOSES TREND TOWARD SALES TAX CUT

Bricker Says He Doesn't Know About It, But Lawmakers Say They Favor 2 Per Cent.

Although Gov. John W. Bricker says he isn't aware of any sentiment among Ohio assembly members for a reduction in the state retail sales tax, in view of the constantly growing state surplus, an informal poll of a few members of the assembly, made by the News-Journal today, showed a decided trend in favor of a cut

News dispatches from Columbus have indicated that the state's surplus, which was around $45,000,000 at the end of 1942, might reach the unprecedented figure of $60,000,000 by the end of this year.

When that was brought to the attention of Gov. Bricker and the question of a reduction in the 3 per cent sales tax suggested, the governor replied that the assembly had refused to eliminate the sales tax on food consumed on the premises, as he had urged during the last session of the legislature and that he knew of no trend among representatives and senators favoring a reduction in the tax at present.

The governor also said he had no intention of calling a special session of the legislature to consider a sales tax reduction.

To members of the house and senate representing areas in this vicinity, the News-Journal today put this question:

"In view of predictions that the state surplus will reach $60,000,000 by the end of the year, if Gov. Bricker should call a special session of the legislature to consider reducing the sales tax from

STORM HITS

Two Injured, Cleveland Traffic Blocked By Fallen Trees.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Unestimated damage was reported in northeastern Ohio today following a severe electrical storm that uprooted trees, caused numerous power failures and resulted in the injury of two campers.

Lashing through Cleveland and its suburbs, the storm blocked the city's main street car and bus routes from 20 to 50 minutes as scores of trees were felled and water backed up in the streets.

Two of five Cleveland boys camping on the bank of Big Creek near the city, were injured seriously when lightning hurled a large tree across their tent They were Waldemar Potts and Arthur Lau, both 16, who were hospitalized after rescuers swam the swollen creek to reach them. Potts received a possible skull fracture and Lau had internal injuries.

Berlin Alibis Loss of Rich Ukraine Area

Declares More Troops Needed In West As Huge Force Faces Entrapment By Advancing Soviets; Raid Ruin Heavy In German Capital.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's battered armies were fleeing the rich Donets basin in southern Russia today and Berlin military circles attempted to alibi the retreat by asserting that greater forces were needed in the west to meet an expected Allied invasion of Europe.

All along the 600-mile southern front, stretching from Smolensk to Taganrog, the Red armies were pushing their triumphant reconquest of the Ukraine.

Soviet headquarters said the Russians punched out gains of four to seven and one-half miles, engulfed hundreds of villages including 300 in the Smolensk-Bryansk sector alone, and killed 6,000 Germans.

"The enemy is bringing up his reserves and throwing them into counter-attacks straight from the march," the Soviet war bulletin said.

Summarizing the battle of Taganrog—the greatest single German defeat since last winter's disaster at Stalingrad—the Russians announced that more than 35,000 Nazis were killed, 5,100 taken prisoner and eight German divisions totaling 120,000 troops were routed.

Tens of thousands of German troops hastily retreating from the Donets river basin were threatened with entrapment between Russian columns advancing along the Sea of Azov and other Soviet forces lunging into the Ukraine farther north.

A Berlin broadcast, acknowledging the withdrawal, said the Russians were building up an overwhelming striking force on the middle stretches of the Donets river, and this suggested that the Nazis were preparing to abandon the industrial city of Stalino, 65 miles northwest of Taganrog.

Farther north, dispatches said the Red armies were girding for a final powerhouse assault on Smolensk, German keystone fortress 230 miles west of Moscow, and were also battering deeper into Nazi defenses around Bryansk.

In the western air war, the RAF's giant bombers apparently gave the German home front a respite after Tuesday night's shattering assault on Berlin.

Swedish correspondents in Berlin said the Germans sent up nearly 1,400 night fighters in an attempt to ward off the RAF block-buster raids Tuesday, but the Germans themselves admitted that about 350 planes broke through the capital's defenses.

A Swedish dispatch passed through Nazi censorship said the damage was "heavy both inside Berlin and on the outskirts," and reports reaching Stockholm said

MARCUS RAID JAP 'WORRIER'

Objective of Carrier-Based Assault on Tokyo Outpost Remains Mystery.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The big unanswered question in the Pacific today was whether the daring U. S navy raid on Marcus island in Japan's home waters was a feint or a well-aimed knockout punch.

Japan could use the answer to that riddle, right now.

Three possibilties emerged from the meager accounts of the spectacular raid:

1—The carrier task force which bombed and shelled the island may have been preparing the way for occupation. It's not a big place but in United States hands it could serve as an outpost that would harry Japan's communications with the south Pacific.

2—The attack could have been a feint to cover some highly important move elsewhere, conceivably occupation of Wake island, or a drive on the vital Japanese positions in the Kuriles.

3—The navy may have moved in for a slashing hit-run blow for its psychological effect, alone.

At any rate, the action served notice on Tokyo's admirals that the Allies can hit from many directions. If worried enough by it, the Japanese might be egged into dispersing their available forces to meet all possible threats, in such manner that a vulnerable hole would be opened in their defenses.

Tokyo worriedly broadcast the news first that the U. S. forces

COUPONS ARRIVE

B Gasoline Books Again Being Mailed To Motorists.

A new supply of B gasoline ration books arrived at the Richland County Ration board this morning to replenish the supply which was exhausted Tuesday morning, C C. Beelman, chairman of the board, said.

Volunteers immediately began mailing books to hundreds of motorists who had sent their old-type B gasoline books in to be exchanged for the new style which became valid yesterday.

The board ran out of the B books early Tuesday morning after having been rushed for several days with replacing the old type books and renewing applications for supplemenal gasoline.

Taft Arrives for Series of Talks, Tonight's Forum

U S Senator Robert A. Taft was to be in Mansfield at 3:30 p. m today for a series of speaking engagements and consultations with his constituents in a public forum session.

Coming here from Mt. Gilead where he spoke at a luncheon meeting, Senator Taft was to make his first appearance at a reception given in his honor by the county Republican Executive committee from 4 to 6 p. m., in the club room at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

At 8:30 tonight the senator will hold a discussion open to the public in the common pleas courtroom at the courthouse. Prior to this he will address the joint gathering of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs at 6 p. m. at the Mansfield-Leland hotel and the Ohio Senior Golf association meeting at Westbrook Country club at 7:15.

WFA Eases Restrictions on Slaughtering, More Meat Due

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Housewives soon will be able to buy about all the meat for which they have ration coupons, war food administration officials predicted today following the suspension of limitations in livestock slaughtering for September and October:

"By that," one marketing official said, "I mean total meat, not that the housewife will be able to at all times to buy a prime beef steak; she may have to take a beef or pork roast instead occasionally, but there should be no more than temporary, local shortages of meat, if that."

While unwilling themselves to estimate the extent of the increase in civilian supplies, officials said that a figure of 20 per cent probably was conservative.

Such a sizeable boost in civilian supplies probably would lead to a decrease in meat point values, since those values are determined on the basis of the available supply and subject to revision according to the shifting quantity moving to market.

Slaughterers have been limited in the amount of meat they could deliver for civilian consumption to a percentage of their deliveries during the same months of 1941. Quotas announced last week for September and suspended by the new order allowed packers to deliver, 90 per cent as much lamb and mutton, 65 per cent as much beef and 90 per cent as much pork for civilian consumption as in September, 1941.

The slaughter of meat during the next two months is expected to be the largest on record for any similar period.

Man, 68, Sentenced for Sale Of Wine to Inmates at O. S. R.

Discovery of a bottle of wine in the possession of an inmate of the Mansfield reformatory today resulted in the conviction of a 68-year-old man for selling intoxicants to inmates of the institution.

Sentenced to 90 days in the county jail by Municipal Judge H H. Schettler was Michael Lutz who lives in a shack along the Baltimore and Ohio tracks near the reformatory gardens. Lutz was convicted after two reformatory inmates testified in court that they purchased wine from him on two occasions, paying him two dollars a quart for it.

Lutz, who has long whiskers and is so deaf that the city solicitor and Judge Schettler had to talk loudly to make him hear at the trial, admitted giving the two youths some wine, but he denied receiving any money for it. Lutz was charged specifically with the illegal sale of intoxicants. The warrant was signed by Herbert Saxton and William Thomas, the inmates who said they bought wine from him.

Saxton was paroled today from the reformatory, leaving the institution soon after he testified against Lutz. Sentenced from Franklin county for burglary and larceny, Saxton served 15 months of a one-to-15 year term. The Thomas youth, colored, who testified with him entered the reformatory in June last year from Richland county as a juvenile. He is serving from one year to age for robbery

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said guards found a full bottle of wine in the dormitory at the institution

REVOLT SHOWS GERMAN 'MODEL' DOESN'T APPEAL

Danish Uprising Proves Free People Can't Stand Nazi Ideals, Theology.

By JOHN COLBURN

STOCKHOLM —(AP)— If Hitler still had any hopes that Nazi ideals and theology would attract free people, they were crushed by the people's revolt in Denmark.

Denmark was Hitler's "model protectorate." She was to be a pattern for treatment of occupied countries under Hitler's "new order." The German invasion of April 9, 1940, signaled the end of the freedom of the Danes, although Denmark was the best-treated occupied country in Europe.

For two years the Danes smarted because of the lack of resistance by their armed forces. They thought that perhaps if they had put up a fight they might have interrupted the Nazi war time table and prevented the Germans from getting such a firm hold in Norway before the British got there to help the Norwegians.

It was just a year ago this month that a turning point was reached in Denmark which eventually led the Germans to impose a military dictatorship on the little nation of fewer than 4,000,000 persons in an effort to crush a revolt that was crippling German troop transport and supply lines and jeopardizing the output of materials for the German war machine.

Organized sabotage directed by Allied agents from Britain started in Denmark in August, 1942.

It developed slowly, but became irritating to the Germans, who also discovered that as a well-treated protectorate Denmark was making little contribution to the Nazi war effort.

And the Danes, burdened with more and more encroachments on their liberties, became even less inclined to co-operate.

A simple telegraphic exchange that grew into an "international incident" gave the Nazis the opening they sought to make further inroads into Danish affairs.

Hitler sent the popular King Christian X glowing congratulations in a birthday message. King Christian replied with a curt "thank you" which Hitler considered an insult. He used the incident as a lever to demand a new Danish government more amenable to Nazi wishes.

Prime Minister Orla Buhl resigned and was succeeded by Erik De Scavenius, veteran Danish diplomat and foreign minister during the last war.

Scavenius took over the government last November. About the same time Hitler sent Werner Best to Denmark as German envoy in a change that also put Gen. Hermann Von Hannecken in command of the Nazi army of occupation.

For eight months political peace reigned in Denmark, but the pace of sabotage acts stepped up.

Sabotage became a menace to the production of materials which Germany had depended upon more and more as Allied bombardments wrecked her own industries. The Germans demanded the right to arrest and try saboteurs under Nazi law.

The government refused to grant the request and the Germans did not at first press their demands.

Sabotage marked one of two major steps leading to the current revolt. The second was the activities of the German occupation soldiers.

The first contingents of troops were well behaved. But then Germany began to send nervous veterans from the Russian front who forgot all discipline. They became embroiled in rows with Danes, who accused them of molesting women.

Sweden's discontinuance of transport of German soldiers and war materiel over Swedish railways between Germany and Norway and Finland gave the Danes a new wedge in their sabotage attacks.

Germany had to transport troops and supplies to Norway through Denmark. The Danes this month began blowing up railway lines carrying men and materials and sabotaging ships going to Norway.

Best maintained his mild collaboration policy with the Danes. But two weeks ago, while Best was away, aides of General Von Hannecken presented an ultimatum from Berlin demanding for a second time German administration of justice—with the death penalty—for saboteurs.

Neither King Christian nor the government would take the responsibility for permitting Germans to execute Danes and the request was rejected.

Meanwhile the conduct of German troops became worse. More clashes developed between soldiers and Danes, and both sides compromised in an effort to restore quiet.

German authorities promised to restrict the soldiers to quarters after certain hours. The Danish state council Aug. 21 appealed to the people for order, warning that if sabotage continued the Danes would lose coal and food obtained from Germany.

Neither action had any effect.

German troops continued to run amuck in some cities, and on the other side, sabotage diverted by reinforcements of the air-borne "saboteur commandos" intensified.

Behind the scenes, the Nazi military commander demanded that ruthless steps be taken to suppress the Danes as realization grew that internal revolt might handicap the Germans if the Allies invaded Denmark, which is on one of the shortest routes to Berlin.

Best went to Berlin for further instructions. He came back after seeing Heinrich Himmler, who has taken over the strong-arm job of crushing unrest inside Europe, and with such drastic demands that King Christian threatened to abdicate if they were accepted by the government.

Best remarked: "I'm a dead man in Berlin. My policy has failed."

Sixteen hours later, on Aug. 29, General Von Hannecken announced the military dictatorship for an awakened Denmark, which then began to fight for the first time in 79 years.

Locust Hordes Thrown Back In The Middle East

CAIRO—(U.P.)—The Anti-Locust organization of the Middle East has thrown back the hordes of locusts which threatened to invade the area this year, according to Minister of State R. G. Casey, and is now preparing to meet a renewed onslaught next year, "the greatest menace to the Middle East since the Axis."

Mr. Casey, at a press conference, described the Anti-Locust organization's intelligence system. It is very much like a police radio network, with co-ordinating centers in Jerusalem, Cairo, Wad Medani (Sudan), Nairobi and, just recently, in Heberan, where information can be exchanged with India, Afghanistan and the U.S.S.R.

The ammunition used in this campaign, sodium arsenite and bran, was distributed from strategic pools in Port Said, Port Sudan, Tel Aviv, Basra and Teheran, while the British army supplied transport, local governments gave food and medical supplies, and the RAF provided airplanes from which locusts could be "dusted" with poison.

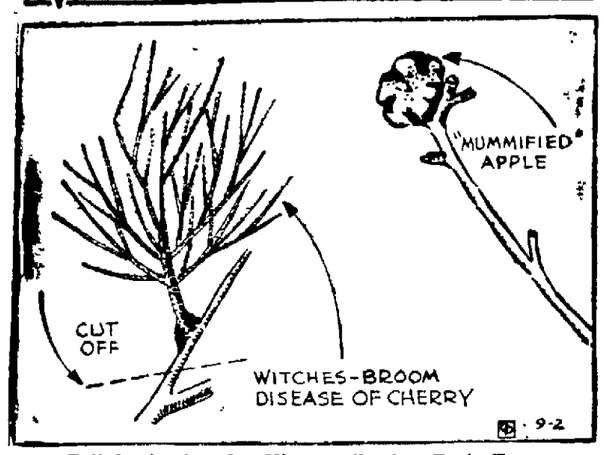
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Fall Sanitation for Victory Garden Fruit Trees.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Assn.)

If you have fruit trees in your Victory garden, plan to inspect them and take such steps for fall sanitation as you may find necessary in order to keep your trees in good health.

Be on the lookout for the effects of fungus infections. A broom disease of both wild and cultivated cherry trees is frequent. The fungus which causes abnormal branching is one of the leaf-curl fungi and is known as exoascus cerasi.

The brooms caused by this fungus are usually long, upright and profusely branched, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. No blossoms are borne on the brooms. The leaves on the twigs of the broom are curled and reddish.

Cutting off the brooms several inches below the abnormal branching will effectively eliminate the disease from the tree.

A "mummified" apple is also shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This aborted or dried up fruit is the result of a parasitic fungus. Much trouble can be avoided with the next crop by removing and burning any such mummified fruit remaining on the trees in the fall since these fruits carry the disease.

MEET SATURDAY

SHELBY—Sharon township trustees will hold a meeting on Saturday night at the city hall.

COMES UP SMILING

LOS ANGELES, Cal. — (U.P.) — Shirley Fletcher, 7, en route in a hurry to school for which she was late, had a set-to with a Santa Fe locomotive and came up smiling with only two teeth missing. The unheeded and unheeding engine sent her sprawling but at the general hospital the only thing found wrong was the two teeth through whose aperture she was able to smile almost as beautifully as before.

LESSON 1 FOR MOTHERS

Mothers, send your children to school in clean, sanitary clothes. It is important to their health and happiness.

RANKS HIGHEST IN AIR SCHOOL

MADISON, Wis. — (U.P.) — Luis Francisco Vereau, a "good neighbor" from Peru, recently was graduated by the big Army Air Forces Technical Training School at Truax Field, Madison, with a mark of 91.2 per cent, highest in his class.

Vereau, 31, came to this country to study special aeronautical work. At Truax field he led the life of a private, first class. The Peruvian government lists him as "Sub-Official Metro de 2da."

Vereau specialized in technical studies at the Escuela de Transmissiones del Ejercito and the Escuela de Communiones at Lima. Later he spent four years in the Peruvian infantry and eight years in the air forces.

In 1941 his government sent him to Curtiss Wright Technical Institute at Glendale, Cal. He graduated with distinction, acquiring the rating of "master mechanic in aviation." Vereau spent 18 weeks at Truax Field and won a special "cum laude" diploma.

JOKESTER NOW IN U. S. ARMY

ITHACA, N. Y.—(INS)—Lester Blumner, Cornell Daily Sun columnist prior to his graduation in 1930, and perpetrator of the "Hugo N. Frye" hoax, is now a corporal in North Africa with the U. S. army.

Blumner, with another Cornellian, Edward T. Horne of Ithaca, sent out letters concerning a 150th anniversary dinner commemorating the birth of Hugo N. Frye, Central New York pioneer Republican. Vice-president Charles Curtis; Secretary of Labor James J. Davis; Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican National committee; Congresswoman Ruth Pratt of New York and Senator Joseph Grundy of Pennsylvania were among those who fell for the bait, and wrote letters felicitating Hugo N. Frye and the sponsors of the dinner.

U. S. Army Raises Service Period On Promotions

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The rapid approach toward the army's present goals in numbers of commissioned officers is reflected in a war department order lengthening the service required for promotions to colonel and lieutenant colonel, according to the Army and Navy Journal.

One year's service as a lieutenant colonel now is a prerequisite for temporary promotion to colonel. Majors must serve for nine months before they become eligible for promotion to lieutenant colonel. Previously six months service in the lower rank sufficed in both these cases.

The current order, the Journal recalls, was preceded recently by an increase from three months to six months in the length of service in grade required by the Army Air Corps to make an officer eligible for promotion, except in the case of second lieutenants, where no service is required. At that time, officer candidate schools' quotas also were curtailed and their courses increased from three months to four months.

In the case of the army, six months service in grade is required, now the same as the Air Corps, to become eligible for promotion, except for second lieutenants, where three months field duty will do.

YOUR DRIVING RIGHTS REVOKED FOR 5 LONG YEARS

IT MAY HAPPEN TO YOU!!

Could You Pay $10,000 Damages?

Or Give Up the Use of Your Car 5 Years!

On September 20th Ohio's new Financial Responsibility Law goes into effect. Among other things, this new law provides that IF YOU FAIL TO SATISFY A JUDGMENT AWARDED AS THE RESULT OF ANY AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT, YOUR DRIVING RIGHTS WILL BE REVOKED FOR FIVE YEARS OR UNTIL SUCH TIME AS YOU CAN SATISFY THE JUDGMENT.

FIVE YEARS is a long, long time to be denied the privilege of driving an automobile. In all probability the war will be over, people will be going places in new, modern automobiles—BUT NOT YOU if you have an unsatisfied judgment standing against you.

AVOID A LAST MINUTE RUSH

It is important that you take action now to avoid a last minute rush. To make sure that you get your policy before the law takes effect (SEPTEMBER 20th), we suggest you place your order with us now, and we will date the policy September 19th.

Mansfield And Madison High Grid Teams Begin Drills

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Marion Harding high school, first opponent on the Mansfield Tygers' gridiron schedule, opened practice yesterday with a picked squad of 38 athletes, which means that the Presidents are in much the same position as the Tygers—well trained in spring drills, and needing only to get in condition for the fall campaign.

Coach Vic Dorris has had a few setbacks since he sent out letters to 39 players inviting them to report for practice, but none of them have been serious.

Fred Levten, reserve fullback, Vic Baker, senior lineman, and Carl Harbolt dropped from the squad before the first practice, but two others have been added. None of the losses were regarded as first stringers.

The Presidents are going on a two-a-day practice schedule until school starts, with the early drills consisting of calisthenics and fundamentals in order to get the boys in shape.

First scrimmage has been set for next week.

Dorris will have four assistants until school starts when two of his aides will take over junior high coaching duties.

At Marion they consider the schedule, opening with Mansfield, the toughest in Harding's history.

The rest of today's column is clipped from Jack Maxwell's "Off the Cuff" in the Canton Repository:

Many loyal but over-enthusiastic McKinley fans are predicting these days, with apparent disregard for the facts of the case, that the 1943 Bulldogs will move right on from the 35-0 victory over Massillon last November to an undefeated season, or something approaching it. To save themselves and their friends a lot of disappointment, these followers would be wise to count to 100, retract all such statements, and settle down to see what happens.

There would have been some grounds for their optimism in peace time, for despite heavy graduation losses, Coach Bup Rearick's Bulldogs would have had a veteran line returning to operate ahead of the fast new backfield, and the team would have been at least the equal of last season's powerful array.

End Dale Haverstock, Tackles Homer Jordan and Frank Bell and Guard Bob Hall are in the navy, and Center Herman Lombardi dropped out of school in anticipation of a call to service and is ineligible although rejected for the army. So with no 1942 regulars on hand and Hank Smith the only returning substitute who saw extensive service last fall, McKinley appears at its lowest ebb since 1939, when Coach Johnny Reed was forced to rebuild the team after virtually the entire 1938 eleven was graduated.

It's true that the outlook isn't as gloomy as it appears on the surface. The 1943 backfield should have more speed and striking power than last year's quartet, although it will be much smaller and less experienced.

Except for two players, Tony Rotunno at right end and Bob Swan at left guard, the line is green, but showed enough last spring to warrant the hope that it will develop rapidly as the season progresses. Also on the credit side, and this applies generally to other schools in the district, the young 1943 squad gives signs of being more enthusiastic and cooperative than its predecessors and may compensate to a large extent for its inexperience by hard work and spirit. At all events, Rearick is setting his sights on the early season clashes with Timken and Lincoln, and for the moment is pushing to the background all thoughts of the duel with Massillon, which should be as near its peacetime standard as any team in the county.

Tygers Get Hard Workout

Must Get In Shape For Marion Opener.

THEY called it running through plays, but it looked very much like scrimmage as Mansfield high's gridiron Tygers gathered yesterday morning for their first practice session of the fall campaign.

The Tygers had their heavy action togs on, pads and headgears, and there was plenty of body contact as they blocked and tackled with all the ferocity of actual play. But the boys had the promise of real scrimmage coming up in a few days, so the action is going to get heavier.

"The boys know their plays pretty well now," said Coach Paul Snyder, "what we've got to do is get them in shape."

So yesterday's drill started out with a full hour of calisthenics, and the Tygers were ready to admit they had been through the mill. To those who complained, Snyder retorted: "That just shows you're not in condition. Last spring you could have done those exercises all day long."

Mansfield's "small but fast" team that Snyder has been talking about all summer, didn't look so small in uniform. But it was still fast. Some of the boys have done some growing during the summer, and the matter of weight doesn't seem to present much of a problem.

"To me it has never been a matter of a big team or a small team," says the Tyger tutor. "It's a question of a fast team or a slow team, and this year, we've got a fast team."

Until school opens, the Tygers will practice daily at 8 a. m. for a four-hour session. Snyder already has his squad down to playing numbers with 35 in uniform. A few may be added after school starts, but there will be few, if any, cuts made in the squad.

The squad roster now includes:

Ends—Bill Lewis, Sam Musille, Ernie Washington, Ed Boliantz, Bob Black, Murray Swihart and Cuvier Mong.

Tackles—Albert Etzel, Gene Haaf, Jack Meeting, Dick Jacobs, and Joe Komjenovich.

Guards—Carl Schafer, Joe Parry, Jim Adams, Pete Bautz, Dean Hemperly, Don Hartwig, John Vawter and Jack Steinberg.

Centers—Bob Miller, Ralph Frew and Bob Gandert.

Halfbacks — Roland Schmidt, Otto Schmidt, Paul Schmidt, Mike Zivkoff, Bill Dent, Gene Menke and Arthur Kern.

Fullbacks — Dominic Musille, Jerry Zeller, Carl Schmidt.

Quarterbacks—Russ McBride, Allen Kinkel

The Tygers open their season Sept. 17 at Marion where the Presidents also opened practice yesterday with a select squad of 39 players.

Hanawalt Paces Westie Golfers

Grant Hanawalt paced Westinghouse golfers at Possum Run yesterday with a one-over-par 37, but all he got out of it was the medal honor as Pete Zeides with a 39 tied him in match play.

Finals Reached In Legion Tournament

MILES CITY, Mont. — (AP) — Minneapolis and Springfield O. will square off again for the final of the American Legion junior baseball world series after having been driven off the field last night by weather.

* * *

The game will be played this afternoon or tonight, depending on the decision of Tournament Director Homer Chaillaux.

Each team scored a run in the three innings played last night.

The Richfields of Minneapolis have defeated Springfield, 9-5, in the double elimination tournament. Minneapolis also was defeated once. Six teams, winners of sectional playoffs, started after the junior championship last week.

BUCK SQUAD CUT

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Coach Paul E. Brown dropped 15 grid candidates during opening practice yesterday to reduce the Ohio State university football squad to 37—"a workable size." Brown said he probably would discard about 12 more.

PETE HENRY'S W. & J. TEAM QUITS FOOTBALL

WASHINGTON, Pa. —(U.P.)— Athletic Director Wilbur (Pete) Henry of Washington and Jefferson college, has announced the school will abandon football for the duration.

The decision breaks 53 years of uninterrupted grid competition by the college, the oldest school west of the Allegheny mountains. Henry said basketball would be continued.

High Schools To Carry on

Tygers Listed Among Outstanding Elevens.

By SAM FOGG
(INS Sports Writer)

SHY OF coaches, players and opponents, Ohio's high school athletes are turning out this week full force to prepare the major gridiron diet for football fans in the state this fall.

With the customary junkets to Columbus, Ann Arbor, Pittsburgh, Evanston and other big-time stadiums ruled out by war-time transportation difficulties and with the smaller Ohio college scene almost deserted, the high school elevens in the state have the responsibility of manufacturing the bruises, bumps and thrills of the 1943 season.

They likewise have the responsibility of overcoming the same obstacles which afflicted and, in most cases, overcame the colleges in the country. The coaching turnover has been staggering as more than 434 coaches have left the profession since last September and today, 354 of them are in uniform.

In similar fashion, most of the schools are stripped of their outstanding and experienced lettermen who in ordinary times would be returning. The armed services have claimed most of the 18 and 19 year olds and war industries have taken still others. Bup Rearick's Canton McKinley team which ended the Massillon football dynasty, 35-0, last fall, will be without Dale Haverstock, Homer Jordan, Frank Bell, Bob Hall and Herman Lombardi, each an outstanding performer.

Jack Tremelling, a star performer at Canton Lincoln for two years and almost a certain bet for all-Ohio honors in his senior year, is not returning. At Bridgeport, Virgil "Rip" Heller, all eastern Ohio end in 1942, will be captain in absentia as he serves in the army air corps.

Schedule difficulties are besetting school athletic managers in numerous schools. Cancellations are resulting as long-standing opponents are forced to drop football and others because of travel involved.

Notwithstanding, the schools are meeting their problems better than did the colleges. Of the 477 school teams of last year, 400 will continue this season. High school superintendents or principals whose conception of football dates back to Chick Harley's time are "boning up" on modern day tactics and spend their spare time coaching. Former high school stars are returning to help and in some instances, squads are drilling without supervision until a coach can be obtained.

Out of all the confusion, Stark county and the river valley sectors of the state are expected to continue to produce powerhouse schoolboy elevens. Canton McKinley, Massillon, Alliance, Canton Lehman, Canton Lincoln and Canton Timken still have the tradition, the material and the coaching which has made Stark county the best victory garden for college gridirons scouts in the country.

Steubenville is staging a rapid comback to former preeminence while Martins Ferry, Tiltonsville, Dover, Zanesville, Bridgeport and Coshocton in the eastern district will rival Massillon and Canton performances.

Another strong squad bidding for the mythical state crown will be Mansfield's Tygers who each two or three years turn up with a contender under Coach Paul Snyder.

In the central sector, Newark has bright prospects and in the northwestern district, Defiance, unbeaten last season, and Montpelier, Northwest Ohio Athletic league titleholder, will be the leaders. Dayton Oakwood in the southwestern district will endeavor to extend a winning streak begun in an undefeated season last year.

Russ Peters Lost To Crippled Tribe

CLEVELAND — (AP) Russ Peters, the Cleveland Indians' regular third baseman since Ken Keltner was spiked Aug. 8, will be missing from the lineup tonight as the Tribe breaks an idle period by resuming business with the Chicago White Sox.

Peters twisted his ankle during Sunday's doubleheader in Chicago and although he finished the afternoon, he was unable to make the trip to Camp Grant, Ill., for an exhibition game the following day. Jimmy Grant will replace him in the Cleveland stadium clash tonight.

PHILADELPHIA STORY.

Philly sport scribes tell this one in explanation of the break between Bill Cox and Bucky Harris—which ought to be forgotten about now. . . . Seems that Cox insisted that 17-year-old Bob Finley should be the club's regular catcher and Harris held out for Tommy Livingston. . . . Bucky argued that Livingston not only was more experienced, but that he was a better catcher and smarter than Finley. . . . "How do you figure that out?" asked Cox. "Livingston never went to college."

SHORTS AND SHELLS.

Boxing's newest twin act, Stanford and Stanley Tuckett, who look so much alike that you have to weigh them to tell who's who, operates with only one pair of ring trunks. So when they fought on the same card at the Lido arena the other night, Stanford's bout had to be delayed until Stanley returned to the dressing room with the essential garb. . . . Manager Steve O'Neill of the Tigers recently received a check dated July 31, 1924, from the town treasurer of Bridgewater, Mass. Steven then recalled that he had helped fight a forest fire when he visited the town 19 years ago, but he always figured that what he had done in Bridgewater was water under the bridge.

Segura Meets Bitsy Grant

Veteran's Play Proves Forest Hills Surprise.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y.—(INS)—A giant shadow of the past looms today in the path of Francisco (Pancho) Segura, the Ecuadorian who will struggle to keep intact his six tournament winning streak when he faces Pvt. Bitsy Grant, of Jefferson Barracks, Mo., in the second round of the national men's singles championships.

Grant, the Davis cupper of a decade ago, and one of the most formidable netmen of his time, surged back to his old strength in the first round of the singles tourney yesterday, when he defeated young John E. Sisson, of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-2.

Segura, meanwhile, trampled over Princeton's Richard J. Bender, 6-3, 6-3. Bender was kept under strict control by Segura's unique two-handed smashes, which are expected to be a dominant factor in the tournament. Pancho was in great form in the first set, but wilted slightly in the second.

Should Segura get past the revived power of Grant, he faces still more trouble. Third-seeded Coast Guardsmar John Kramer, former national doubles champion, advanced into the second round, one match removed from Segura, by eliminating William E. Gifford, of Forest Hills, 6-1, 6-1. Kramer's forecourt game, considered by many to be Segura's most dangerous obstacle, was used to great advantage in this match.

Westies Win Indus Title

Winebrenner Turns In No-Hit League Victory.

Westinghouse softballers won the championship of the Industrial league last night by defeating the second-place Local 758 of Ohio Brass 2-1. Although the two teams have a postponed game left on the schedule, last night's victory clinched the title for the Westies.

Stub Wluebrenner hurled a no-hit game for the Westies but misplays in the fifth gave the union one run, and the champions didn't score the deciding tally until the ninth.

Westies got only seven hits off Gilde.

Statisticians Have Troubles

National Loop Mixups Cause Standing Change.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The business of picking up games in the National league at a given point and playing them to completion at later dates still is causing headaches for the figure filberts.

The senior circuit has had four contests in this category, two of them protested games involving the Phillies and two others suspended games which were halted because of Sunday curfew laws in Boston and Pittsburgh July 18.

The protested games were entered in the standings at the time they were played, but when league president Ford Frick ordered the contests resumed later from the point of argument, the Phillies won the game they had been charged with losing to the St. Louis Cardinals and lost the game they had been credited with winning from the New York Giants.

This called for corrections in the standings. The suspended games were not included in the standings at the time, but one of them was finished yesterday and, as it turned out, it might just as well been counted a legal game at the time it was recessed.

This contest was the second game of a doubleheader between the Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates which was halted after seven innings with the Redbirds leading 6-5. When the two final frames were run off neither team made a move and the July 18 score became the Sept. 1 score.

What did happen was that Rip Sewell of the Pirates, who had entered the contest in the seventh inning in a relief role and returned to the mound to complete the game, was charged with his seventh defeat against 19 victories. This now raises the question of whether Sewell had an 11-game winning streak in July, or whether it was broken at seven games on July 18.

Manager Billy Southworth, instead of resuming the game with George Munger, who was on the mound for the Cards when play stopped, used Mort Cooper to pitch the two final innings and hold onto the margin of victory.

But when Cooper also was chosen to start the regularly scheduled game that filled out yesterday's program, he was tagged for three runs on three hits in the second inning and relief by Murry Dickson.

The Cardinals subsequently rallied with Danny Litwhiler hitting a homer and Martin Marion getting two triplets to win 8-6. Dickson received credit for the win.

The other suspended game of July 18 involved the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers and is to be finished Sept. 13. This game was tied at 4-4 in the sixth inning when play was interrupted.

Only one other contest was played in the major leagues yesterday and in it the Chicago Cubs took a slugging session from the Cincinnati Reds 12-9 on Phil Cavaretta's three-run homer in the 10th inning. The Cubs made 22 hits and the Reds 14, including homers by Bert Haas and Estel Crabtree.

BUCKEYE SWIMMERS PASS TITLE DEFENSE

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Coach Mike Peppe announced today that Ohio State university's championship swimming team will not defend its National A. A. U. outdoor swimming title at the New London, Conn., meet this week-end.

When the Buckeyes won the title last year it started them off on a clean sweep of the nation's top swimming championships.

Homer Defeats Reds In Tenth

Cavaretta Clouts With Two Mates on Base.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The Reds are almost back where they were last week despite all that winning over first place St. Louis Cardinals.

Their loss yesterday to the Chicago Cubs in a fuzzy 10-inning game, 12-9, coupled with the Cards' double win over the Pittsburgh Pirates, made the Reds 12 games behind, and time is getting short. Elmer Riddle may be able to do something about it today if he can outpitch Hiram Bithorn of the Cubs.

All of importance and interest in yesterday's game was in the 10th, when Phil Cavaretta caught one of Clyde Shoun's best pitches and sent it over the centerfield wall, scoring two men ahead of him.

That hit, the 22nd of the day for the Cubs, broke Shoun's string of seven straight relief victories. He had come in just to pitch the 10th after Ray Starr, Ed Heusser, and Joe Beggs failed to hold the Cubs.

The Reds got in the ball game in the ninth, when all looked dark by the score of 9-6, on a walk, a balk, and a double by Max Marshall, followed by old Estel Crabtree's home run. But Shoun, for the first time in weeks, couldn't save the day.

The Reds trailed by six runs after five and a half innings, but managed to score spasmodically in the late innings to come within shooting distance.

Bert Haas also hit a home run, tapping Claude Passeau in the first inning with Lonnie Frey on base.

Lou Warneke, who pitched only one and a third inning, got credit for the game.

Brewers Regain Association Lead

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee's Brewers broke a five-game losing streak last night and found themselves right back in first place in the tight American Association pennant fight.

The Brewers, however, drew a timely assist from fifth place Louisville. The Colonels rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to overpower Columbus, 6-4, which only Tuesday had taken over the pace setting role.

Columbus' defeated dropped it to third place behind Indianapolis, winner of an 11-8 slugging match with Toledo, but the Redbirds still were within a half game of first.

Milwaukee's 8-6 triumph came at the expense of Minneapolis. St. Paul moved into seventh place ahead of Kansas City by defeating the Blues, 5-1

Rams Add To Tough Schedule

Delaware Booked For First Home Contest.

OPENING of the practice season for Madison high school Rams last evening under their new coach, Bob (Jeff) DeHaven, highly successful mentor in recent years of the John Simpson Junior high Bulldogs, was the signal for important news for Ram fans.

The Rams have added their second Class A opponent to their home football schedule, DeHaven announced. Delaware comes to Ram Hill the night of Sept. 24 to open the home season. Galion, Oct. 22, is the other "A" school on the sked.

All of which adds up to one of the toughest football schedules in Madison history, but the Rams are still looking for an opponent for Oct. 29, an open date caused by Bellville giving up the sport.

The schedule:

Sept. 17—At New London.
Sept. 24—Delaware.
Oct. 1—At. Orrville.
Oct. 8—Dennison.
Oct. 15—At Loudonville.
Oct. 22—Galion
Oct. 29—Open
Nov. 5—Crestline.

DeHaven's first practical call was answered by only 21 boys, which means he'll have to get at least one more for scrimmage. However he's expecting a few more to report as soon as school opens, and manpower in quantity may not prove to be a great problem.

The former Simpson mentor is well set on a starting backfield after moving Joe Harfman from guard to blocking back to team up with Dick Bader, Bob Anthony and Dick Eccles, a fast trio of mail carriers.

DeHaven has fallen heir to one Mansfield high school athlete, Joe Radio, who will be a welcome addition at end. George Snyder, a reserve end last year, may get the other wing job. Robert Conroy, and Leo Eldridge, a new boy from Indiana, also are listed as wingmen

Tackles are Captain Wally Campbell, Charles Dunham, John Schuttera and Harold West. Guards are Harvey Smith and Charles Higgins. Larry Madden is the only center listed on the squad thus far, but among those expected to report later are Bud Rose, a center, and the two Brightbills.

Other candidates are Richard Conroy, Bob Strang, Jack Erdenberger, Jack Cleckner, Kenneth Foster and Bill Huntsman.

Foster Larribee again will act as assistant coach.

EMPLOYES GET HEARING ON PAY HIKE TONIGHT

Worker's Committee, Council Members To Discuss Wage Problem at Session.

City council will renew its study of the request of city workers for pay increases at a special hearing tonight when representatives of the employes will be given a chance to take their appeal directly to council members.

Fire Capt. Frank Stahl, chairman of the workers' committee on salaries, said he and members of his committee had been invited by Councilman C. N. Shultz, head of the council committee on pay increases, to sit in on the session.

Since it won't be a regular council session, there's little chance that there will be action on the workers' request, but the employes' committee may get an answer to their appeal.

Council, serving as a unit committee on the salary increases, agreed to take up the pay question again after the city employes, backed by Mansfield labor organizations, requested further consideration at a meeting that the employe representatives could attend.

Council last month postponed action on the pay requests, explaining that it was too late in the year to put increases into effect if they were granted.

GET REPORT ON GAME SUPPLY

Fish and Game Members Told 500 Pheasants Released on Richland Farms.

Meeting last night at North Lake park in their first session of the fall and winter season, members of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association were told that 500 pheasants have been released in the county this summer and that the beagle field trials are scheduled to open Saturday at Charles Mill lake.

Report on the pheasant releases was given by A. A. Miller, chairman of the association's pheasant committee. He said the 500 birds were freed on farms where hunting is permitted. He said about 300 more birds probably will be released this month.

The annual Olentangy Beagle club field trials will be held on the running grounds at the southeast side of the lake. Headquarters will be at the fish and game association's clubhouse at the lake.

Judges at the trials will be William Dawson of Beaver Falls, Pa., and John Clarke, Corropolis, Pa. Meals during the trials will be served at the clubhouse by wives of the club members, said Gordon Ensminger, president of the fish and game association.

Schedule for the field trials which will be conducted five days includes:

Saturday—Trials for male dogs 12 inches tall: Sunday—13-inch female dogs; Monday—15-inch male and female dogs; Tuesday—Combined derbies; Wednesday—windup.

ORDERS PROBE

Police Chief Meade K. Bates today ordered an investigation of circumstances resulting in the arrest of a Paducah, Ky., man last night on complaints of two East Second street women.

The Kentuckian was charged with intoxication, but Bates said the police report showed he was in one of the houses and may be guilty of breaking and entering. Police arrested the man on the complaint of Mrs. Daisy Wetzel, 295 East Second street, who said he was trying to get into her home. A neighbor woman later said the man entered her home while she was upstairs.

Expect 3 Street Resurfacing Jobs To End This Week

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving company today was resurfacing three streets in the downtown area and expected to have them completed by the end of the week.

The base coat of "black-top" was being spread on West Second street east of Mulberry, South Mulberry between Park avenue west and First street, and First street on the hill between Mulberry and South Main streets.

Basic materials already have been placed on sections of South Main street and Lexington avenue and East Third street from Diamond to Franklin.

Carl H. Stander, contractor on the street projects, said work on West Second, Mulberry and West First streets probably will be completed this week and his workers would return to the South Main street-Lexington avenue job next Tuesday.

Stander's firm holds the contract for resurfacing East Fifth street from Main street to the Pennsylvania tracks and will start on that job after the Baltimore & Ohio railroad re-locates its switch tracks in the street, he said.

7,500 Yanks Die In Sicily, War's Total Near 20,000

21,764 were missing, and 19,740 have been officially reported prisoners of war.

Of the army wounded, McCloy told a press conference, more than 9,000 have recovered completely and returned to active duty. He added that the total of missing included a large number of Philippine scouts lost in Bataan and Corregidor.

Navy casualties announced to date are 21,556; marines 7,904, and the coast guard 363. The latest merchant marine summary showed 4,751 dead and missing.

In all the services, the dead now total 19,863.

Casualty summaries of services other than the army:

Navy—7,840 dead; 2,553 wounded; 8,917 missing; 2,246 prisoners of war.

Marines — 2,005 dead; 2,501 wounded; 663 missing; 1,925 prisoners of war.

Coast guard — 182 dead; 22 wounded; 158 missing; 1 prisoner of war.

Merchant marines (from Sept. 27, 1941, to Aug. 1, 1943) 627 dead; 4,124 missing.

POPE'S SPEECH IN HEADLINES

Italians Display Appeal For "Worthy Peace."

BERN, Switzerland —(AP)— The Italian press prominently displayed the entire speech of Pope Pius XII yesterday appealing for "a worthy peace."

The Swiss Telegraphic agency said today the broadcast appeared under such headings as "give nations hope of dignified peace" and "do not offend rights to life and honor."

The dispatch said the display was significant in view of the fact the pope's words were published briefly, if at all, on back pages during the Mussolini regime.

POLIO CLOSES CICERO SCHOOLS

CHICAGO —(INS)— Prevalence of infantile paralysis caused postponement today of the opening of schools in two suburban towns from Sept. 7 to Sept. 13.

Twenty-five schools in Cicero, with 13,000 pupils, will be affected. The J. Sterling Morton high school, which serves both Cicero and Berwyn, also will delay its opening until Sept. 13. More than 8,000 students attend that school.

Yesterday's 39 new cases in Chicago and the county brought the total since July 1 to 514. There were 46 deaths in that period.

I—VITAL STATISTICS

1—Death Notices

HOFFMAN

Robert James, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hoffman, died early Wednesday morning at the Mansfield General hospital, 6 hours after birth. Surviving besides the parents are a brother, Nevada James, and a sister, Vivian Kay, both at home, also the grandparents, Mrs. Alice Hoffman of St. Mary's, Ohio and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wells of Bellville. The body was removed to the Wappner Funeral Home for burial preparations. The burial was made Thursday afternoon in the Mansfield Cemetery. (Wappner's.) (L-2)

HOUT

Mary Goldie Shryock, wife of Stanley B. Hout, daughter of Webster S. Shryock, sister of Hoyt and Ray, passed away at the Mansfield General hospital late Wednesday morning. Funeral services will be held from the Finefrock Funeral Home Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in charge of Rev. J. Campbell White. Interment in Mansfield cemetery. (B-2)

WILSON

Vera Bell Mabee, wife of Lee Byrd Wilson, mother of Mrs. Everett Smith and Mrs. Walter Andrews, passed away at the home in Springfield township early Thursday morning. Funeral services will be held from the Finefrock Funeral Home Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in charge of Rev. C. H. Bowers. Interment in the Ontario cemetery. (Finefrock's) (B-2)

2—Card of Thanks

WE WISH to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all the friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during the death of our father, Douglas Scott. To Rev. Faulkner for his consoling words, to the George Funeral Home for their fine services, to all who sent flowers and to others who assisted in any way.
The Scott Brothers,
Dorthea M. Weber.

WE WISH to express our sincere appreciation to the friends and relatives for the beautiful floral offerings. We especially thank Rev. Sheriff for his kind words and consolation. The Wappner Funeral Home for their sympathetic assistance in our time of sorrow in the death of our beloved brother.
The Sowash Family.

STOCK LEADERS CONTINUE TO SHOW RECOVERY

Carrier Incomes Take Drop as Result of Taxes and Higher Costs.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks extended their recovery jog by fractions in today's early market proceedings.

Gainers at a moderately active opening included Dome Mines, Allied Chemical, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, General Electric, Loew's, Kennecott, White Rock and Southern Pacific.

Holders of carrier securities noted the compilation of the Association of American Railroads disclosing that net income for class 1 system in July amounted to $83,300,000 against $89,631,861 in the like 1942 period. It was the second consecutive month the year-to-year total had shown a decline. Taxes and mounting costs of operations were held responsible.

Offers to Drop Case If Accused Will Pay Costs

the practice of drivers holding out on taxi owners."

A jury panel had been drawn today to hear the charge against Stevens in municipal court next Tuesday.

It was learned that VanDyne was approached by a spokesman for Stevens who suggested that the charge be withdrawn so that Stevens can enter the army next week with a clean slate. Stevens, whose wife is an expectant mother, is due for induction Sept. 8, the day after his trial.

Atty. George W. Biddle, counsel for Stevens, said the proposal to withdraw the charge was refused by his client who said he was "innocent of the charge and saw no reason why he should pay the court costs."

VanDyne said he had agreed to the withdrawal after he was approached by Stevens' spokesman, but added that unless the costs are paid by the driver, the case would "have to be tried."

The taxi firm proprietor said he had warned his drivers about alleged withholding of money due the firm and brought the charge against Stevens "as an example for the rest of them." Stevens has been free under $200 bond since his arrest Aug. 21.

Members of the jury panel from which 12 jurors will be selected to hear the case are:

Herman A. Greving, 14 Lexington avenue; C. Lyman Lantz, 205½ Marion avenue; Edgar L. Leap, 160 Lind avenue; Cletus Perl, 157 Lexington avenue; Florence E. Hughes, 42 Sherman place; George L. THEATERS

Skelton Wins.

Continuing through Friday will be "DuBarry Was a Lady" at the Ohio theater, starring Red Skelton and Lucille Ball. Skelton is his usual funny self as the dimwitted Louis XV and Miss Ball is the attractive Du Barry. The plot of the musical concerns itself with a checkroom attendant in love with the star of the floor show. Although she loves a poor entertainer at the same club she determines to marry for money. When Red wins the sweepstakes she promises to marry him. Many complications develop from there.

Comedy and Thrillers.

Showing through Friday at the Madison will be "Calaboose," farce comedy and romance in a western setting. The leads are played by Jimmy Rogers, Noah Berry, jr., Mary Brian and Bill Henry. Its story is of two happy-go-lucky cowboys who become involved in a gangster brawl in the wide open spaces. Co-feature is "Captive Wild Woman," a new horror drama, starring Evelyn Ankers and John Carradine.

Russian Background.

Walter Huston plays the lead in the timely picture, "Mission to Moscow" at the Ritz through Friday. The film is an eyewitness account of Russia through the eyes of a typical American and his family. Former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies during his two years in the Russian capital as ambassador from the United States, went where he pleased and became friends with high Soviet officials. Ann Harding plays the leading feminine role. Co-feature is "On Dress Parade," starring the Dead End Kids.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Cadets to Dance—Members of the McVey Post American Legion Cadets will have a dance Saturday from 8 to 11 p. m. at the Legion hall, according to Captain R. E. Moore. Cadets are requested to wear their uniforms.

Cited as Speeder — Cyril Keith Gauner, Loudonville, yesterday was cited by police who charged him with driving 42 miles an hour on Sturges avenue between West First street and Glessner avenue. He was ordered to appear in municipal court next Wednesday.

Suffers Injury — Edward Freer, Butler, was treated at General hospital early today for a head wound which he suffered in a fall on the sidewalk at Sixth and Main streets at 1 a. m. today, police reported. Freer was released this morning from the hospital.

Meet Wednesday — Block and sector leaders in the war services division of the Civilian Defense program have been asked to meet at 1:30 p. m. Friday at civilian defense headquarters in the city building to map their part in the war loan drive which opens next week.

Don't Use Jars — Mrs. John Pierce, head of the OCD war services in Mansfield, said today that the firm which purchases waste fats contributed by city residents had objected to the use of jars for the grease. The glass breaks easily in transit and damages equipment at the plant where the fats are processed, it was said. Large-topped tin or heavy glazed paper area satisfactory for shipping the grease if tops can be placed on them, Mrs. Pierce said.

who posted a 158 in 1942 to lead the field. Also on hand was W. B. Foden, Cleveland, who was runner-up with a score of 160.

As this dispatch is filed, shortly before noon, no scores have been posted. The field was a little late getting away from the post, as they say in horse-racing, and some of the boys—pardon, the gentlemen—had to get in a few practice shots before they settled down to the serious business of tournament golf.

In addition to the golfing business, there was other business to be taken care of. There's the annual banquet and election of officers scheduled for tonight, for one thing.

Eighteen holes of golf are scheduled for today—and the final 18 comes off tomorrow. As in the past, the golfers are competing in classes, according to ages, and there are prizes for the winners of each class in addition to the over-all championship.

RITES FRIDAY

Funeral Services Arranged For Mrs. Stanley B. Hout.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. J. Campbell White at 3:30 p. m. Friday at the Fine-frock funeral home for Mrs. Stanley B. Hout who for 15 years prior to her death, Wednesday, had served as assistant secretary of the Richland County Agricultural association. She was 53.

Mrs. Hout was a member of the United Presbyterian church. She had been ill several months.

A native of Springfield township, Mrs. Hout came to Mansfield 37 years ago and became associated with the fair board while her father W. H. Shryock, who has been connected with the county fair for 51 years, was serving as secretary. She continued as assistant under the secretaryships of Walter W. Shafer, C. C. Hout, and R. D. Hale.

Surviving besides her husband, who is area rent inspector for the Office of Price Adminstration, and her father, both at home, 143 Arthur avenue, are two brothers, Ray and Hoyt of Mansfield, two nephews, both in the armed services, and four nieces, all of Mansfield.

Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

POLL DISCLOSES TREND TOWARD SALES TAX CUT

Bricker Says He Doesn't Know About It, But Lawmakers Say They Favor 2 Per Cent.

3 to 2 per cent, how would you vote?"

Three of four members of the house who could be reached for comment by the News-Journal indicated they would vote for such a reduction.

They were Robert L. Moulton, Democrat, Crawford county representative; J. Frank McClure, Republican, Ashland county, and N. B. Backus, Lorain county.

All said they felt that the reduction could be effected without curtailing state services.

John L. Catlett, Richland county Republican representative, said he felt that the reduction was "too much."

He pointed out that the 3 per cent sales tax produced $60,000,000 in revenue per year and that a reduction to 2 per cent would cut that revenue by $20,000,000. He said he felt that post-war projects would require as much money as the surplus would be able to provide.

State Senator P. H. Rogers, Grafton Republican, whose 27th-29th district includes Richland county, sided with the three representatives who favored a reduction.

Rogers said he had come to this conclusion after conferring yesterday with Senator Fred Seibert, Auglaize county Republican and chairman of the senate finance committee, of which Rogers is a member.

Rogers said Seibert told him the state's surplus might even reach the startling figure of $100,000,000 by the end of the year and warned that "piling up surplus of that size is as dangerous to our economy as having too little."

Another representative, Leslie Burge, Lorain county Republican, who has resigned his seat to enter the navy as a lieutenant (j.g.) said he would be in favor of cutting the tax rate when the surplus actually reached $100,000,000.

Early in the year, a series of stories in The News-Journal disclosed that the Bricker administration not only was piling up a tremendous surplus but was also spending more money than any administration in the history of the state.

Paper Says Argentina Will Protect War Criminals.

BUENOS AIRES—(AP)—Comment on President Roosevelt's request that neutral countries refuse refuge to "war criminals," the newspaper La Presna indicated today that Argentina would adhere to "her traditional attitude" of granting asylum to political leaders.

The newspaper, one of the largest and most influential in Argentina, added that the policy of asylum for political leaders has been accepted by all American republics except the United States and Haiti.

As a precedent for the purported decision of the Argentine government, it cited the protection offered by certain South American embassies in Madrid during the Spanish Civil war.

Man, 68, Sentenced for Sale Of Wine to Inmates at O. S. R.

in the possession of an inmate who told officers Saxton and Thomas purchased it for him. The two youths admitted buying one quart bottle of wine from Lutz and drinking it in a cornfield and taking another bottle to the inmate inside the walls.

Plainclothesman Howard Schuck who assisted with the investigation said about 200 empty wine bottles were found behind Lutz' shack. Lutz explained in court that "men who buy liquor at a Bowman street saloon threw the bottles there."

Supt. Glattke said the cooperation Saxton and Thomas gave authorities in convicting Lutz saved them from additional penalties for buying the wine and delivering it to an inmate in the institution. Both trusties who worked in the gardens, Saxton and Thomas said Lutz called them to his shack which is only a short distance from the reformatory farm.

"We are determined to break up any activity of this nature, for we definitely won't tolerate any communicating with inmates by outsiders or smuggling liquor or anything else into the institution," Glattke said. He added that there had been rumors at other times of articles being smuggled to inmates, but this was the first time authorities had obtained positive proof of it.

3 VACANCIES

Teaching Staffs Unfilled at Butler, Plymouth, Union.

Three vacancies still remain to be filled before the opening of Richland county schools next week, County Superintendent Boyd Robinson said today.

Search is now on for teachers qualified to fill these positions so that county schools will open completely staffed. Still needed to complete the roster are a vocational home economics teacher at Union school, a commercial teacher at Butler, and a social science teacher at Plymouth.

Ready now to open their doors next Tuesday are Bellville, Cass, Lexington, Lucas, Madison, Mifflin Rural, Sharon Rural, and Springfield schools. All county schools with the exception of Plymouth will open Sept. 7. Plymouth will open Monday, Sept. 13.

and was seeing British military leaders and chiefs of British missions in this country after lunch.

White House officials stressed that the visit should not be considered as of a purely business nature since Mr. Roosevelt hoped to make it partly social. They also described the talks as representing not the beginning of a story but the conclusion of one begun in Canada.

Entirely lacking in these comments and in the general atmosphere of the new conference were signs of the extensive military planning which was the main purpose of the Quebec meetings. The emphasis appeared rather to be on political aspects of the war in Europe, both present and future.

The state department issued a statement saying Russia had been consulted about and kept fully informed of military operations in the European theater of war and also "with respect to political situations arising directly out of military operations."

HITLER ARMIES FLEE HEADLONG FROM DONETS

Berlin Tries To Alibi Loss of Rich Ukraine; Raid Damage Heavy.

about 500,000 residents of Berlin had fled the city for the duration of the "bomb war."

Well, Anyhow, That's What Berlin Says

LONDON—(UP)—Radio Berlin said today that the German people entered the fifth year of the war with unshakable confidence because:

The eastern front stands firm despite Soviet attacks, thus assuring Germany of needed raw materials.

Anglo-American terror attacks from the air have failed to shake German morale, but instead have strengthened it.

German war production is steadily increasing through total mobilization.

The victory of the National Socialist ideology already is a fact throughout the world, with even those countries seeking to destroy it being compelled more and more to accept its principles.

Nazis Claim Air Victory Over Berlin

STOCKHOLM — (AP) — German military experts claimed a big air victory over British bombers in Tuesday night's raid against Berlin but by their own admissions it was apparent today that the RAF succeeded in dumping a huge load of bombs on the reich's capital

Neutral Swedish correspondents reported that the Germans massed nearly 1,400 night fighters in their effort to keep the British bombers from reaching Berlin.

Nazi experts told the Swedish newspapermen that the RAF used about as many planes on Tuesday's raid as they did on Aug. 23 when 1,700 tons of bombs from 700 heavy British bombers devastated the west and south sections of the city and left fires which burned for two days.

The London Daily Express reported that the Germans sent up 1,000 fighters Tuesday night in an attempt to beat off the RAF bombers, which the paper said dumped 1,500 tons of bombs on Berlin.

The Express called the raid "the greatest air battle of the war." If the Express tonnage figure is correct the Tuesday raid was lighter by 200 tons than the attack of Aug 23

Rail Yards Near Naples Hit Heavily

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA (AP) Wellington bombers carried another Allied aerial blow to enemy communications in the Naples area last night by scattering two-ton bombs over rail yards at Aversa north of the Italian port. Allied headquarters announced today

American heavy bombers were grounded yesterday by unfavorable weather for the first time in nearly two months, but American Warhawks attacked a zinc factory at Iglesias, in southwest Sardinia, and light bombers harassed communications on the toe of Italy.

From the Middle East, British heavy bombers struck at the Axis airfield at Grottaglie, near the Italian naval base of Taranto, in a Tuesday night raid from which all aircraft returned safely, a Cairo announcement said.

Soviets Attack Turkey Neutrality

MOSCOW—(AP)—The latest issue of the Soviet magazine, War and the Working Class, in an article titled "Who gains from the neutrality of Turkey?" said "the neutrality of Turkey becomes increasingly more favorable and necessary to Germany."

The magazine said "Turkey secures the safety of the Balkan flank of the German armies and allows the Germans to continue to hold very limited forces on the Soviet-German front."

The article asserted that now when Germany is treasuring all her army divisions, her final defeat could be accelerated if Turkey would abandon her neutrality and throw in her lot with the Allies.

Danes Refuse to Form New Government

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—Eric Scavenius, Danish prime minister who resigned his post when Germany clamped a military dictatorship on Denmark last week-end, has declined an offer by the Nazis to form a new government, Danish refugees said today.

Scavenius, one of the few Danish political leaders to escape arrest following Sunday's bloody revolt, had been asked to head a new cabinet by Gen Hermann Von Hennecken, Nazi military dictator.

Other members of the cabinet who resigned in a body with Scavenius, refused even to meet the Germans to discuss the situation, the refugees reported.

Danish refugees arriving here said that for the first time in more than 10 days no German soldiers were seen patrolling Copenhagen streets and that disorders appeared to be diminishing under the rigid controls set up by the Germans

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Vera Belle Wilson Dies at Home; Rites Saturday.

She was born in Springfield township Aug 1 1885 and has been a life-long resident of that township Mrs Wilson was a member of the Ontario Community church.

Surviving are her husband two daughters Mrs. Everett Smith of Madison township, and Mrs Walter Andrews of Lincoln Heights; two brothers Percy J Mabee and Ernest C Mabee, both of Springfield township, and four grandchildren

Funeral services will be conducted at the Finefrock funeral home Saturday at 2 p m with Rev. C. H Bowers officiating Burial will be in Ontario cemetery.

MARCUS ISLAND RAID REMAINS MYSTERY MOVE

Objective of Carrier-Based Assault Secret, But It Worries Japs.

hit tiny Marcus at dawn Sept. 1 with "many planes." The navy said only that the attack was planned and is "presumably in progress."

This willingness of the navy to say anything at all before the fleet breaks its radio silence with details was another indication of growing Allied confidence in its Pacific might. It put an exclamation point needed behind Navy Secretary Knox's recent statement that a warship a day is going into that theater, and translated into action the word that the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences are dealing largely with ways of getting at the Japanese for a showdown scrap

A Japanese imperial headquarters communique said 160 bombers and fighters participated in the American raid on Marcus island, and that "some damage was suffered by our grounded planes."

The communique, broadcast from Tokyo and recorded by Reuters in London, added that there were some casualties and declared 12 of the American planes were shot down

Japs Give Version Of Marcus Attack

(By United Press)

The Japanese radio reported today that 160 planes and two aircraft carriers made up the U. S task force that attacked Marcus island in the mid-Pacific yesterday.

The second official Japanese announcement on the raid in two days stated:

"In regard to the enemy raid upon Minamitori Shima (Marcus island) on Sept. 1, according to a later report the enemy task force consisted of approximately 160 fighters and bombers based on aircraft carriers. The force raided our air base facilities.

"During this operation our force shot down 12 enemy planes

Pincers Closing On Salamaua

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—The coastal jaw of a slowly closing Allied pincers pressed nearer the Salamaua New Guinea, airdrome from the southeast today as Japanese defenses cracked.

A spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur characterized the enemy's crumbling resistance as "rearguard," an indication that the Japanese are giving way.

Latest reports indicate the Americans have skirted enemy pillboxes and foxholes and assigned another force to eliminate the virtually surrounded Japanese below the airdrome and the Francisco river mouth.

Out on the mountains and along the south bank of the Francisco river, hard bitten Australians have reached a point within two miles possibly less of the river's mouth

North of the river considerable activity indicated that the Japanese, after the first shock of finding the Allies driving in from above as well as below the airstrip, now are making a determined effort to hold positions.

U. S. Bombers Hit Mandalay Rail Yards

NEW DELHI—(AP)—Liberator bombers of the U. S. Tenth Air Force dumped a "great weight" of explosives on the railway yards at Mandalay yesterday, it was announced today in a headquarters communique which said "excellent results were reported with numerous hits in the target area."

While the four-engined Liberators concentrated on Mandalay, twin-engined B-25 Mitchells attacked Japanese rail installations and communications in other parts of central Burma. All planes returned safely from the day's operations, the bulletin said.

The communique disclosed that heavy and medium bombers raided enemy installations in central and northern Burma Aug 29, also without loss.

Meanwhile, Glattke said he had learned today that two of four inmates who escaped the same day last week and later were captured at Chillicothe would be prosecuted there for auto theft. The two who were apprehended by city police and state highway patrolmen were Russell Allen, 24, and Samuel Shrider, 22, both of Newark

State patrolmen at the Mansfield sub-station said today they had searched the area along State Route 95 between Butler and Perrysville for several hours for a car reported stolen from the Fineflock funeral home garage the day the four inmates made their get-away.

Patrolmen said they learned from Chillicothe that the two captured inmates confessed stealing the Fineflock car and abandoning it in the weeds along the highway in southeastern Richland county. The youths later stole at least three more cars, abandoning one in Bexley, another in Portsmouth, and the third in Chillicothe before their capture.

Glattke said today that reformatory guards always have more trouble with escapes at this time of year because the tall corn affords protection and an ideal hiding place for fugitives.

materially and the association should be encouraged to continue what it has already started," one member of the board said. He added that the association already had offered to support the levy proposed by taking an active part in the campaign.

Floyd F. Dent, recreation chairman said that between now and the time of the election, a complete program will be drawn up so that the electorate will know in advance on how the levy revenue will be spent.

The motion to submit the levy was offered by Paul Tappan and seconded by W. C. Mead. It was supported by the other two board members, Carl Stough and H. W. Arlin.

MEAT POINTS ARE REDUCED

But Butter Ration Value Will Go Up To 12 Per Pound Beginning Sunday.

cent above July Lamb production is running ahead of earlier estimates and the peak production period has been entered.

The beef situation, officials said, is tighter than that in lamb and pork. The amount of beef in retail stores available for civilian consumption in September will be only about 2 per cent above August supplies At the same time, officials pointed out that beef production does not usually reach a seasonal peak until after October 1.

No changes were made in the point value of lard, shortening, cheese and other rationed fats, oils and dairy products Movement of these products was reported to be in line with civilian supplies allocated by the war food administration

OPA officials made no effort to conceal their apprehension about the butter situation. For the first time, creamery butter and "farm" butter were listed separately and given different point values.

County butter was assigned a value of six points per pound, compared with the new creamery butter value of 12 points a pound

The OPA hopes by placing a lower point value on "farm butter," which is sold mainly in rural areas, to increase its consumption by those who have expended points for creamery. Officials pointed out that butter production in August was about 5 per cent below previous estimates and predicted that the slump would be continued in September.

"The future increase in the point value of creamery butter is necessary because purchases near butter-producing areas have been so large at a 10 points value that shortages have developed in other parts of the country," OPA said.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1943.

"There's no place like home"—and even if there were there'd be no gas to get there.

Bulgaria seems inclined to withhold authority from its new six-year-old king, but he could scarcely do worse than tying up with Hitler.

Someone suggested that the government might take over the Ford company to get efficiency—but vice versa would seem more likely to accomplish something.

That September 15 Tax Estimate

WHAT at first seemed a simplification of income tax procedure, under the withholding arrangement, now develops unexpected complications.

Instead of the one report a year, previously required in advance of March 15, many income taxpayers are now called upon to file, before September 15, a declaration of "estimated income and victory tax for 1943," which involves calculation of current year's income three and a half months in advance of the year's end.

While the blank form is small, with only six dotted lines for figures, the explanation is at considerable length and requires careful reading.

Two quarterly payments having already been made on 1942 income, it is explained that, "With the September 15 declaration, if you are required to file one, you will be making a payment on the amount, if any, which you will still owe the government over and above the estimated amounts withheld and the payments which you have already made during 1943."

Another explanatory paragraph says: "Generally speaking, you will not have to file this declaration or make a payment on September 15, if your wage or salary is subject to withholding and if your income is not more than $2,700 a year if single, or more than $3,500 a year if married."

Persons with fixed incomes will have little difficulty in figuring their probable 1943 income within the 20 per cent underestimate which is permitted without imposition of penalty. It will not be so easy, however, for persons engaged in business or a profession to estimate their total year's income in advance of September 15, or for some of those not subject to the withholding tax to make the required payment by that date.

The final income tax return for 1943 must be made before March 15, 1944, as usual, it is explained—so the September 15 declaration must be construed as a part of the "simplification" procedure.

Busy Evening for Senator Taft

OPPORTUNITY for another of the valuable open forum meetings, for discussion of subjects of public interest, is being given as a result of today's visit in Mansfield by Senator Robert A. Taft.

A public meeting in the common pleas courtroom at 8:30 this evening will conclude a busy afternoon and evening for the senator, who is scheduled to arrive here in mid-afternoon: be welcomed at a reception at the Mansfield-Leland hotel from 4 to 6: speak at a joint meeting of Kiwanis and Rotary clubs at the hotel at 6: address the Ohio Senior Golf association meeting at Westbrook Country club immediately thereafter, and wind up the day by speaking at the open forum meeting at 8:30.

Mansfield and Richland county appreciate this opportunity to welcome Senator Taft as a guest and to hear an expression of his views on subjects to which he has been giving thought.

Representative attendance, to capacity of the common pleas court room, will evidence interest of people of this community in keeping in touch with public affairs through the medium of such meetings.

J. Edgar Hoover Offers Suggestions

WHEN J. Edgar Hoover puts the cure of delinquency up to the Parent-Teacher association he does not mean that the organization as such is responsible for all the troubles the country is having with juvenile delinquents. But he does mean that the organization can get at the causes and largely prevent future outbreaks. He says:

> "Today's tragic picture speaks of parental and community neglect of young people. A wayward child's misbehaviors can usually be traced to lack of proper guidance and supervision during the formative years. The National Congress of Parents and Teachers with local P-T A groups in almost every community can better than any other help to counteract the social unrest and craving for excitement that inevitably accompany war, and that lead, inevitably, to youthful crime."

Eradication of the wartime spirit of restlessness and the resulting search for abnormal excitement is the task which Mr. Hoover puts squarely up to the P-T A. It is not an easy one. It means that the organization must help by making plain to the individual home its responsibility.

Until every home sees this responsibility as a prime duty, juvenile delinquency will continue to increase. Home and family life must be made interesting and home duties must be made a matter of normal co-operation. Ideals of good citizenship must become matter of course

Matches Shorter and Scarcer

LITTLE THINGS still count, and it is estimated that the recent order of the War Production Board, reducing the length of wooden matches five-sixteenths of an inch, will save 7,000,000 feet of lumber a year. Can you imagine that!

Paper match books also appear in danger of drastic reduction. Users have already found them harder to get and often a charge is made for them, whereas the old practice was to give them away.

This will be hard on collectors. Some have thousands of match books, souvenirs of hotels, restaurants, filling stations and night clubs from Sitka to St. Augustine. At any rate, they will find it harder to get new specimens.

The low cost and ready availability of matches have been a characteristic of American civilization. Other countries tax them and get considerable revenue.

Remembered as a choice paragraph written by the late Kin Hubbard: "Lafe Johnson was over to the poor farm Sunday to visit an old friend, an editor who tried to please everybody."

It's always disheartening, after being favorably impressed by the views of nationally recognized experts, to learn that they are not necessarily those of the sponsor.

A time-table of trains out of Berlin is now noted as an addition to "escape literature."

HOW ABOUT A LITTLE OF THAT GUARANTEED FREEDOM FROM FEAR NOW?

'Russia Not at War With Japan' Tersely Explains Soviet Attitude

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

BRITAIN'S Prime Minister Churchill, in his speech at Quebec Tuesday, brought out that "it would not have been suitable" for Russia to be represented at the recent Anglo-American conference which "would largely if not mainly be concerned with heating and inflaming the war against Japan, with whom the Soviet government has a five-year treaty of non-aggression."

That gives us one answer to the interminable query as to why Russia doesn't make war on Japan, or at least grant Britain and America the use of Siberian airfields so that we can get at the Japanese mainland. If cynics sniff at this, there's a much more realistic explanation of Moscow's attitude.

Quite apart from the non-aggression pact, it's unlikely that there's anyone in the Allied councils who would dream of asking an already overburdened Soviet to take on the added task of fighting Japan. My understanding is that high Allied circles feel it would be positively brutal to suggest any such thing.

Were the Soviet at war with Japan, Moscow today wouldn't be celebrating its third major victory in three days. The Nazi military giant facing the Reds wouldn't be rocking on his hob-nailed heels. The Allies likely would be viewing the war "through a glass, darkly."

Moscow has told us that there are more than 3,000,000 German troops, apart from satellite forces, on the eastern front. From the start Hitler massed the bulk of his terrifying striking power against the Reds in what probably has been the bloodiest fighting of all time.

EVEN if you look on the non-aggression pact as a scrap of paper, it would be sheer military folly for Stalin to open hostilities against Japan while still engaged with Hitler. True, Russia is supposed to have between 750,000 and 1,000,000 troops close to Manchukuo, the Soviet is said to have a strong air-force in Siberia, and a large fleet of submarines at Vladivostok.

The Russians could hold their own, but the Japs also have perhaps a million men available in Manchukuo and northern China and are set for contingencies.

But, asks somebody, why can't Russia let Britain and America use Siberian air bases for attacks against Japan? Well, the answer is that this would be tantamount to a Soviet declaration of war on the Japs.

Will Russia join the Allies against Japan after the European conflict is ended? We'll have to page Marshal Stalin for that one. However, we can see for ourselves that the non-aggression pact looms large. That historic document was signed April 13, 1941, and doesn't expire until 1946. If neither party renounces it one year before expiration, it's automatically renewed.

So unless Japan gives just cause, Russia can't declare war without breaking her bond. Who asks her to do that? If you want the Reds to fight against Japan you'd better pray mighty hard that the Japs commit some hostile act—and stranger things than hostile acts have happened.

Viewing the matter from the purely "practical" standpoint, what reason is there to expect that Russia will do other than be governed by honor and personal interests after the war with Germany is finished? Getting down to cases, do you know any nation that's in this global holocaust purely for altruistic reasons?

Should circumstances release Moscow from its non-aggression pact, there's no present reason to doubt that the Reds would at least throw open their airports to the Allies. It shouldn't be forgotten that Japan is Russia's mortal enemy, the pact notwithstanding.

Still that doesn't necessarily guarantee that Russia will go all-out in war against Japan.

Monotony of Waiting

SICK of the war, aren't you? Sick of the deadly monotony —the constant reminder. Doesn't matter whether you are a welder or a WAVE or an obscure little housewife, the thing gets you down. You try to push ahead bravely—you think enviously of those who are in the midst of action overseas.

Yes, they're facing danger but sometimes you think that danger, even death, would be better than this dreary routine. If you could chuck it all and take the fastest plane to the nearest rumpus—what a relief it would be.

But it wouldn't. This war isn't being fought in great swoops or dramatic dashes. It is being fought in a monotony more dreadful than anything you or I know. Men waiting days, weeks, months for something to happen. Men grappling their tedious way up mountain sides, foot by foot. Men inching their way, belly down, over sand dunes. Men wading hip high in nameless ports, dragging machinery so heavy that their veins seem to burst with the heft of it.

Waiting. That's the deadly part of war whether it be at the front or at home. Patriotism? Any man with blood in his veins can pump that up when the flags are flying and the trumpets calling and the planes roaring overhead. Action, no matter how bloody, that's relatively easy too, provided you're mad enough inside. But waiting—waiting—waiting — that gets you down.

And yet waiting is one of the basic elements of life. A nation is as great as its power to wait. A man is as great as his ability to endure monotony.

IT'S THE FAMILIAR GESTURES THAT DO THE TRICK . . . THE SMALL, SLOW, DOGGED MOVEMENTS THAT WE THINK DON'T COUNT.

Cities aren't built in a day nor is civilization saved in one wild rush. Cities are built rivet by rivet. Homes are made chore by tedious chore. Civilization is saved by the men and women who have the courage to rise above the personal adventure and see themselves as part of a great plan.

Any show-off can strut.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The "Whisky Rebellion" broke out, Sept. 2, 1794. The first federal tax produced the first civil war in the United States. Militia of New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia, some 13,000 men, had to be called out by President Washington to put down a revolution in western Pennsylvania resulting from an internal revenue impost upon spirits.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

FDR Studies Plan to Encourage Latin American Food Production

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is about to tackle the most explosive piece of political dynamite in many years—encouraging food cultivation in Latin America.

The problem is being placed upon his desk by war advisers, including Leo Crowley of the new Office of Economic Warfare. They point to the tremendous drain on our own food resources and the fact that we are soon going to face the job of feeding the world. Only solution for this, they say, is to call upon our Good Neighbors to increase their own production of farm products.

This is bound to raise a tremendous storm on Capitol Hill.

Farm bloc leaders are certain to point out that only a few years ago huge wheat surpluses in Argentina, the United States and Canada, caused a series of wheat conferences to try to curtail crops. Following this, the United States did curtail, but Argentina did not.

Farmers also remember the long, bitter dispute over the importation of Argentine food products. During the Hoover administration, Argentina exported to us a mere handful of about one million bushels of corn along the Atlantic coast, where it was used chiefly as chicken and pigeon feed. The ensuing howl from American farmers brought an increase in the U. S. tariff on corn.

During the Coolidge administration, Argentina exported to us large quantities of alfalfa seed. In order to check it, Coolidge's secretary of agriculture, William Jardine, ruled that Argentine alfalfa seed must be colored orange red, an indication to farmers that it winterkills.

Argentine Cow Kicked FDR.

AGAIN there was FDR's own famous crack about the Argentine cow being better than the American cow, a remark which was seriously resented in many quarters and which hurt him among farmers.

Despite this certain political backfire, however, it looks as if military necessity would send the president squarely into the teeth of politics with a food cultivation program in Latin America.

Argentina, not having broken with the Axis, is not a Good Neighbor, and will not be used. Nor will wheat and corn, two staples of which the United States has a normal surplus, be encouraged. However, other important crops will be pushed in Brazil, Mexico, Ecuador, Peru, Chile.

These crops include: soy beans, peas, dried eggs, rice and dairy products. The greatest need is foods rich in proteins.

Behind this revolutionary step against the president's own best political interests are some confidential figures on foreign food demands which are anything but encouraging. These show that next year, the U. S. A. will have to send 10 to 15 per cent of its food supplies to other United Nations.

Allies Need Meat.

WE WILL have to increase shipments of meat to our allies by six or seven times next year. Normally we import cheese from Europe. But next year we will have to send over 450,000,000 pounds of cheese to Allied armies and civilians.

We have also been requested to export 20 times as much condensed and evaporated milk as before the war, plus a billion pounds of lard, compared to an average annual shipment of 165,000,000 pounds.

To supply both ourselves and allies we must produce at least 700,000,000 additional pounds of cheese next year, as well as 300,000,000 extra pounds of dry beans and peas, plus about 500 million pounds of edible oils.

That is why the Office of Economic Warfare is enlisting Sam Zemurray, of the United Fruit Co., to advise on making contracts with Latin American farmers for deficit foods. The OEW will supply technical advice, farm machinery, fertilizer, insecticides, etc. A separate farm program will be undertaken in North Africa to supply food to our troops there.

Political advisers figure that the president will run into the biggest legislative storm on Capitol Hill since his Supreme Court fight. But despite this he plans to go ahead.

Note: The country hardest hit for food is Russia, which, having lost its richest grain-growing areas in the Ukraine, is now producing only 40 per cent of its normal food. The people of Russia will be on the verge of starvation this winter, even with U. S. food imports.

Canada Gets Gas.

HARD-WORKING Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire has been emphasizing to Washington officials the unfairness of gas rationing for New England while large quantities of oil and gasoline pass through New England to Canada.

"We are only too glad to accept gas and oil rationing if it is necessary," Senator Bridges has told the OPA and the Petroleum Administration for War. "But every day we see tankers steam into Portland, Maine, carrying oil for Canada which is piped across New England. Moreover, we don't begrudge oil and gas to Canada provided their allotment is no greater than ours. But it is.

"Canadians are getting more gasoline than we are," complained Bridges. "And they are getting it in tankers, despite the fact that we are told tankers cannot be used to carry oil and gas to New England."

Senator Bridges, however, has run into a stone wall of silence. OPA and Petroleum Administration spokesmen reply that the amount of oil Canada gets is established by higher officials than themselves — presumably the White House.

ERNIE PYLE

Roving Reporter

Shortage of Experienced Engineers Apparent as War Needs Increase.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—The engineering forces with our army are trained and organized to a high degree, and engineering morale is proud and high.

Strange thing, it used to be the fashion to sort of sneer at the engineers, but that day has passed. Even the infantry takes off its hat to them—for not infrequently the engineers are actually out ahead of the infantry.

Before launching into many details of how the engineers work, I'll explain how their organization is set up for it will make it easier for you to understand their job. Each infantry division has a battalion of engineers which is actually part of that division and works and suffers with it. The battalion consists of four companies totalling around 800 men.

Sometimes all the companies are working in separate places with various infantry regiments. At other times, in mountainous country, when the whole division is strung out in a single line 20 miles or more long, the engineer companies keep leapfrogging each other, letting one company go into 24 hour reserve about every three days for a much needed rest.

BEHIND these division engineers are what are called corps engineers. They are under control of the Second army corps and can be shifted anywhere at the corps' command. Corps engineers follow up the division engineers, strengthening and smoothing the necessarily makesnift work of the division engineers.

Capt. Ben Billups of Alamagordo, N. M., put it this way, "Our job is to clear the way for our division of roughly 2000 vehicles to move ahead just as quickly as possible. We are interested only in the division. If we were to build a temporary span across a blown bridge, and that span were to collapse one second after the last division truck had crossed, we would have done the theoretically-perfect job. For we would have cleared the division, yet not wasted a minute of time doing more than we needed to do when we passed.

"Then it is the corps engineers' job to create a more permanent bridge for the supply convoys that will be following for days and weeks afterward."

Often there is jealousy and contempt between groups of similar types working under divisions and corps. But in the engineers it is a sort of mutual-esteem society. Each respects and is proud of the other. The corps engineers are so good they constantly are at the heels of the division engineers and a few times, with the division engineers 100 per cent occupied with an especially difficult demolition, they've pushed ahead and tackled fresh demolitions themselves.

AT FIRST, particularly, all the officers of the engineers' battalion were graduate engineers in civil life, but with the army expanding so rapidly and professional experience running so thin, some younger officers now assigned to the engineers have just come out of officers' school and have little or no engineering experience.

Of the enlisted men only a handful in each company ever had any construction experience. The rest are just run of the mine—one-time clerks, butchers, cow punchers. That little handful of experienced enlisted men carries the load and they are as vital as anything I know of in the army.

Practically every man in an engineering company has to double in half a dozen brasses. Today he'll be running a mine detector, tomorrow he'll be a stone mason, next day a carpenter and the day after a plain pick and shovel man. But unlike the common laborer at home, he's picking and shoveling under fire about half the time.

In the book of organization the duties of the engineers are manifold. But in the specialized warfare in Sicily many of their book duties just don't exist and their main work is concentrated down into four very vital categories. These are: road building and bridge by-passing; clearing of mine fields, finding and purifying water for the whole division, and providing the division with maps. The latter two don't sound very spectacular, but believe me, they're important and I'll tell you more about them before this series ends.

A Farmer's Diary By CALVIN A. BYERS

Eccentric Behavior

THE HEAVY storm was moving fast. Upon the western ridge rain fell and then descended into the valley. An old man was mowing weeds about the border of his cornfield. A bolt of lightning struck near by and I saw a blue light play upon his scythe.

When I was near enough, I stopped and invited him in for shelter. "No, thank you," he said with a twinkle in his mild blue eyes. "I've been a-watching that rain a-coming there for nigh an hour. That's why I'm mowing weeds."

"But I don't understand . ."

"You see," he grinned, "if I'd come out to watch the rain with nothin' else to do, my wife'd become suspicious. The way it is, she knows I'm mowin' weeds and she feels, like I do, that it's necessary. Fact is, though, I've come out here along the corn so I can hear the first heavy drops upon the blades.

"It's a wonderful moment to hear the rain pour down, with everything pale and misty like around you—and the cornstalks standin' higher and more upright like it was a joy to 'em. I kind o' think it is. I've never read anywhere that plants and trees had feelin's, but I believe they do."

"But you'll get wet," I told him.

"What's the difference? It's nature's showerbath—it's soft and warm and pure. I like to feel it come upon my old gray head and shoulders and then stream down my body. When I'm all wet more rain feels better'n ever. I like to hear it soak into the thirsty ground—bubbles rise and burst like the tickin' of a clock."

"So you won't get in with me, even to keep out of the rain!"

"No—I missed the shower on our corn last week just because a neighbor came. I don't like the cold spring and fall rains so much, but a fine summer shower is a tonic for anyone. This'll be a good one!"

I heard the patter of rain, faster, faster, as he walked deeper into his field. I saw him lift the worn straw hat from his old gray head and look westward, smiling, at the rain.

Eccentric—yes, perhaps. But I thought I knew that the rain was a part of him, and he loved it as he loved his farm and his home.

MARQUAND BOOK DEALS WITH ERA FROM '12 TO '41

New Book Gives Picture of America During Period Between Two Wars.

John P. Marquand's new novel, SO LITTLE TIME, being released at Mansfield Public Library Saturday, has for its setting Bragg, Mass., New York City, southwestern Connecticut, Hollywood, and Washington—the time, from the German invasion of Norway to the end of 1941, but in retrospect the story goes back to 1912 and so gives a broad picture of an era.

It is the story of Jeffery Wilson, prosperous play doctor and movie-script rewriter—and especially it is the story of his relations with his older son, Jim, who was 19, a student at Harvard and in love. It forms a provocative picture of America—the America of booms and depressions, of isolationists and interventionists—between World War I and World War II.

A TREE GROWS IN BROOKLYN by Betty Smith, is a novel of childhood in Brooklyn — of Francie Nolan who was made up of many things: her mother's softness and steely strength, the weaknesses and passion for beauty of the shanty Nolans, her father's love of the bottle, her Aunt Sissy's love for life and habit of marrying many times without the formality of divorce, her grandmother's mysticism. It is the story of a family whose lives were as humanly gaudy as their background was inhumanly drab—a story of laughter and tears, cruelty and compassion. Time: before and during the first World war.

LATE AND SOON by E. E. M. De La Pasture, is a story of present-day England — of what happens when Valentine Arball, a widow in her early forties, discovers that the man she has fallen in love with, an Irishman and her contemporary, is the lover of her own daughter.

OTHER FICTION: THE FIGHTING AMERICAN—ed. by Mason (A war-chest of stories of American soldiers from the French and Indian wars through the first World war.): DARK DARRAGH, Mapother; WITHOUT LAWFUL AUTHORITY, Coles.

In the book, REFLECTIONS ON THE REVOLUTION OF OUR TIME, Harold J. Laski, an English economist, discusses the Russian revolution, the meaning of fascism, conflicting policies in the democracies, threats of counter-revolution, and possibilities of a planned democracy. In order to avoid civil wars, or revolution by violence, at the end of this war, he points out a need for revolution by consent, with an economic system capable of supplying world welfare. Not easy to read, but thoughtfully provocative.

Frank Meier, one of New York's master divers, offers in FATHOMS BELOW thrilling stories of great salvage ventures from the early sailing ships to the Maine and the Normandie, with an eye on the vastly important wartime salvage efforts of today. His stories are packed with drama—he writes not merely for the hard-headed, practical men who man the salvage crews but for the lay reader who is fascinated by books about the sea.

LOVE IN AMERICA by David Lewis Cohn is an informal study of manners and morals in American marriage. The opinion that Mr. Cohn derives from his research is that relationships between American men and women are far from satisfactory—that Americans are emotionally adolescent—and, though his approach is satirical, he makes a serious plea for the decencies, the graces, the nobility, the cultural values that give beauty and zest to family life.

SOUTH AMERICAN JOURNEY by Waldo David Frank is a personal account of what the author felt to be on a mission through South America. He covered Brazil, Uruguay, Chile, Peru and Argentina, where he was insulted by the Fascists, and in this book he gives the story of that adventure.

OTHER NON-FICTION: THROUGH HUNDRED GATES—Lamping: ZONES OF INTERNATIONAL FRICTION—Gibson (Vol. 5 The British Empire Before the American Revolution): WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME—Buck; THE CHURCH OF OUR FATHERS — Bainton; GOD'S BACK PASTURE—Hewitt: NOT BY BREAD ALONE—Dun: THE JAPANESE IN SOUTH AMERICA—Normano and Gerbi: GIRL'S PLACE IN LIFE AND HOW TO FIND IT—Faust: MANUAL FOR THE CONDUCT OF CLASSES FOR EXPECTANT PARENTS; PRACTICAL GUIDE TO SUCCESSFUL FARMING—Moreland.

AID FARMERS

CHICAGO—(INS)—The burden of Dubuque county farmers has been partly eased by the "Twilight Harvest Corps," an organized group of harvest workers. The men are employed evenings within a radius of 10 miles of Dubuque in the harvesting of oats and other grain crops. They receive payment in fresh eggs, cream, chickens, vegetables and other farm products.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

We were sittin' on Bill Webster's back porch Saturday complaining of the heat.

"Reckon this is the hottest day on record," Homer Bentley observes. "And the thirstiest," says Bill, taking a long draught of buttermilk.

That got us on the subject of thirst-quenchers—and Bill allowed as how nothing was as cooling as a tall, cold glass of buttermilk. Thad Phibbs and I both voted for a glass o' cool refreshing beer. Dan Miles said he'd take iced tea, "with a sprig o' mint in it."

"Anyway," says Bill, "we all got a right to our own tastes... and that ought to leave everybody happy."

And from where I sit, Bill's right. It's a small point of course—but tolerance of what the other fellow likes—and his right to enjoy it—whether it's buttermilk or beer—is the important thing in any argument.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

For school girls who are expecting to work now or later and for older girls who are already working, the children's books being put on the shelves of the Mansfield Public library give timely descriptions of various jobs. The first is a general survey of essential jobs open to girls in wartime. The other is specialized for retailing only.

WARTIME JOBS FOR GIRLS, by Mary Rebecca Lingenfelter—Many interesting opportunities are mentioned in this recent book. Jobs are to be found everywhere: on the home front, in the land army, in public service, in personal service, in business and industry, in war production, and in government service. Greatest need is for the development of effective working habits among those who wish to work.

CAREERS IN RETAILING FOR YOUNG WOMEN, By Doris McFerran—All kinds of retail stores are described here and the different kinds of jobs available in each kind are described to some extent too. This should be interesting not only to those who hope to work at selling but also to any who are curious about what happens behind the counter. Other books one might read are suggested and interesting details in store management are given.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

By William McLeod Raine

(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER XI

Snatches of talk drifted to Lee. He gathered that Jake and Bart had cut loose from the others so that the party would not be noticed by its size Tomorrow Greer and Ralston would separate from their companions

The man who had his back to Bob leaned forward and talked in a low voice He seemed to be giving instructions In the shadow of a cottonwood that obscured his figure Bob could not help feeling that if he could penetrate the gloom a little better he might identify him

Cass interrupted impatiently. "Hell, why so many precautions? We're in the clear Time to begin having some fun I'm heading for Shreveport to raise hell He rose, stretched, yawned, and said he was rolling up for the night.

Bob knew that some of them would wander his way to change the picketed horses. It was time for him to be gone He wriggled back into the dip

A startled voice cried, "What's that?"

Cass laughed derisively "One of the horses moving You're the goosiest train robber I ever did meet up with, Pip'

Bob retreated cautiously, untied his horse and mounted

"Got to hustle back to McAlester," he told the buckskin Then you'll have a long rest I'm asking a heap of you but it has to be that way, old Pal"

Before he reached the road a rider passed crashing through the brush fifty yards away

Hours later Bob left his weary animal at a livery stable, walked to the station and found the telegraph operator drowsing in his chair A train had been delayed by a flood and he could not leave till it arrived.

Sleepily he read the message Bob addressed to Ben Austin at Atoka It asked Ben to notify all deputy marshals and the Indian police that the Hickorys had robbed a Santa Fe train near Perry and were making for their home hide-out The bandits would pass through Atoka within forty-eight hours

The eyes of the operator were no longer sleepy He stared at Lee incredulously Is this some kind of a josh?' he asked

'No sir Straight goods Do I look like I was here to joke?'

The railroad man took in his sunken eyes unshaven face and generally disreputable appearance Dust had sifted into every crease of his rumpled clothes

I don't want to get a call because I fell for somebody's monkey business,' the operator explained

"You won't" Lee promised "But if you don't get to tapping those keys pronto you'll lose your job Mister, I've followed these birds three hundred miles Do I need a letter from the president of your line before I can send a telegram?" Bob's temper suddenly wore thin. 'Quit gassing and send that"

The operator looked into eyes grown cold and hard "All right —all right,' he said

Bob walked to the hotel and told a clerk he wanted to see Whit Carson

You can't see him now," the clerk said 'He's asleep"

'What room is he in?"

'Never mind what room he's in If you've got business with him come round in the morning It's one o'clock now" Bob reached across the counter to the man caught his nightshirt tightly by the neck and dragged him forward 'What room is he in?"

The clerk gulped 'Seventeen"

'Take me there,' Lee ordered

The clerk massaged his throat and swallowd hard Carson won't like it"

'That's my lookout Get going"

Marshal Carson did not like being awakened and when he came to the door said so profanely

I've brought you a hundred dollars, Mr Carson?" Bob said mildly

Don't get funny with me" he grumbled I'm not in the humor for it Who are you?"

'Bob Lee"

The marshal held higher the lamp in his hand and glared at his visitor. "Come in," he said at last

Bob entered The clerk vanished Lee took stock of his host as he pulled on a pair of trousers He saw a stocky man of about forty with tanned leathery face, light blue eyes and with wrinkles

"All right" he said shortly. "Let's have it

"I've found the Santa Fe train robbers for you, marshal" Bob told him 'I know where they are camped tonight"

"Where?"

'In the Shawnee Hills"

"Ran on them just by chance, I reckon?"

'Yes I saw their campfire while I was going back to the river to look for them."

Carson did not believe Bob but he did not intend to pass up the information "Talk with them?" he asked

'No I crept close and recognized the men—two of the Hickorys Rush Greer, and Phil Ralston"

"How do you know they are the bandits?"

'I'll have to start from the beginning to tell you that We've got a long ride before us. I'll tell you on the way"

The marshal's voice was as dry as unslacked lime "Tell me now Maybe we won't ride"

Bob told the story of his dealings with the Hickory gang Carson listened, asking a few questions It was an unreasonable tale, but it might be true Everything about this boy recommended him to the officer yet one point that stuck in the marshal's mind was the lack of motive for this visit unless it was an honest one There was a possibility of course that some of his enemies —and he had made plenty of them during his years as a frontier officer—were using the lad as a decoy to trap him.

"Do you know a man called Timmy Boggs?" Carson asked.

'Yes, one of the Choctaw Indian police"

'Will he vouch for you?"

Bob's face lit up "Sure He was at a dance when I had my first fuss with the Hickorys"

They found Boggs at the house of a friend on the edge of town At sight of Lee the Choctaw officer greeted him with a 'How, Bob?"

'You know this man, Timmy?" the deputy marshal asked

Boggs said he did.

'What do you know about him?'

The Choctaw said he was a cowboy working for the J A B outfit had come from Texas with Broderick

'A friend of the Hickorys, I hear' Carson interrupted

No friend," Boggs contradicted 'Bob Lee all right" The Indian repeated the story of what had occurred at the dance, of the fight at Four Corners of the conviction of Cleburn Hightower and of Lee's resolve to save his friend

'There's a reward put for him as one of the Santa Fe train bandits Carson explained

"A dumb sheriff put that poster out Bob told him, and explained the setup

The Choctaw policeman accepted his story 'If Bob say the Hickorys in the Shawnee Hills I think he tell the truth,' he told the deputy 'The Hickorys bad men Steal cattle Make trouble Very likely rob train You ride to the Shawnees tonight I go with you Maybe we catch them"

Carson was satisfied.

At the appointed hour they rode along the road which Bob had already traveled three times within the past twelve hours There were four of them Carson had added a guard for prisoners being taken to Ft Smith, a hard-eye scowling fellow named Lute Burton Bob was riding a flea-bitten sorrel supplied by the marshal

Bob's shoulders were heavy with fatigue He had ridden hard and far Since breakfast he had not eaten His body sagged in the saddle, all the spring gone out of it. Several times his eyes closed His hands clung to the horn and his head drooped When he jerked up he realized that he had been asleep

The marshal's voice broke through his drowsiness "Did you go up this gulch or swing round to the left?"

"Went up the side of the hill to the ridge We're getting close"

"We'd better be," Carson answered, and lifted an anxious eye to the sky, into which the light of day was breaking "Wish we had made it an hour earlier They'll be awake"

Bob nodded That meant a fight

Time had worn a runaway from the ridge where the marshal's posse drew up for investigation and down it a brook gurgled to the draw.

A faint breeze rippled through the pines Through the scrub brush the men above could see smoke still rising from the camp fire

"Too late" Burton growled "The birds have flown"

As he spoke a man came into sight from behind a hill leading a horse by its picket line. A second and a third followed him They prepared to bridle and saddle

"If we ride down they'll hear us coming," Carson said

"And if we don't we'll be too late," Bob replied "Once we lose them in these hills they'll be hard to find"

Carson did not answer. He turned his horse into the draw Bob had descended when he first saw the camp fire. Loose rubble littered the bed and the animals more than once slid almost on their haunches

GENERAL LAUDS WOMEN DRIVERS

CHICAGO — (UP) — The army, braving the wrath of critical males, says without qualification that women make good automobile drivers.

Maj Gen. H S Aurand, commanding the Sixth Service Command, Army Service Forces, backs up the statement with facts.

"Since we began hiring women last November to drive army vehicles they have not been involved in a single serious accident," Aurand said.

"Some of the men drivers have had major accidents, which is regrettable, but the fact that no woman driver has returned a car with more than a scratched fender is made more significant when compared with the mishaps of men"

Women drivers in the Sixth Service Command pilot jeeps field ambulances and trucks up to one and one-half tons capacity

JAP SOLDIERS HUSKY ATHLETES

SEATTLE —(INS)— Some Japanese soldiers are as husky as well-trained athletes, in spite of reports that most of them are puny and undernourished, according to Staff Sergt. Willard A. Noe, who returned recently from the Aleutian islands.

"Don't let anyone tell you those Japs are all little fellows," he said "Some of them look like Oxford athletes."

Noe was returned for treatment of a broken leg. Fractures do not heal well in the Aleutians because of a lack of calcium in the water, he explained.

ANNE MARIE M'QUAID HONORED AT PARTY

Miss Margaret Rizer, Miss Betty Jona, Hostesses at Event Feting Sorority-Sister; Sorority Plans September Meeting.

MISS ANNE MARIE M'QUAID was the guest of honor, last evening, at a lovely party given at the home of Miss Margaret Rizer, 243 Ruth avenue. Associate hostess was Miss Betty Jona. Miss McQuaid reports to Hunter college in New York, Sept. 9, to begin boot training in the WAVES.

Guests at the party were members of Beta Pi Mu sorority, of which the honoree is a charter member. She has been serving as sergeant-at-arms.

Games and contests were used as the evening's diversion. Prizes were won by the Misses Jane Spayde, Clara Jasinski, Mary Dove and Betty Rizer, Mrs. Dale Hammett and Mrs William Bernhard.

The hostesses presented Miss McQuaid with a lovely gardenia corsage. She received personal gifts from her sorority sisters.

A patriotic theme with relation to the United States Navy was used throughout the evening. Red, white and blue were used in the color scheme.

At a late hour, a dessert course was served buffet style from a long table covered with a white dinner cloth. The centerpiece was a large blue and white ship, with a WAVE standing at its gangplank. Surrounding the ship were smaller boats, manned by sailors, representing the U. S. fleet. At either end of the table were lighted red, white and blue tapers shaped like the hat of Uncle Sam. Favors were miniature sailor boys mounted on red, white and blue cups.

The next regular meeting to be held by Beta Pi Mu will be a business meeting in the club room of the Hotel Southern, Tuesday evening, Sept. 14.

SHELBY—Miss Mae Sutter, bride-elect of John Seaholts of Plymouth was feted at a party given by Miss Martha Fulmer on Grove avenue Wednesday. Miss Esther Arnold had entertained for Miss Sutter earlier in the week.

FOR VITAMINS' SAKE

Fresh vegetables such as carrots radishes beets and the like, should be thoroughly cleaned before you refrigerate them and the stems and leafy portions should be removed. Don't shell peas and lima beans or husk corn until ready to use. Otherwise they'll lose their sweetness and most of their vitamins Westinghouse home economists say.

SOUR MILK

Stuck with some sour milk? Don't waste it — Westinghouse home economists point out that the food value of sour milk is the same as that of sweet milk and it is easier to digest. Use it in some of your baked foods, adding a dash of soda to neutralize the sourness. Go easy on the soda—not more than one-half teaspoon to one cup of sour milk or it will leave an unpleasant aftertaste.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Miss Curl Feted Wednesday With Birthday Party

Miss Marilyn Louise Curl, daughter of Mr and Mrs. K. P. Curl, 562 Highland avenue, was surprised, yesterday with a party in honor of her sixth birthday. Ten little friends were in attendance.

Games and contests were held during the afternoon. Prizes were given to Billy Miller, Louise Rusk, Ronald Smith, Mary Elizabeth Glessner and the honoree.

Luncheon was served in the yard at a long table. The birthday cake, trimmed in pink and white was used as the centerpiece. Pink and white appointments were used.

Guests, other than those who won prizes, and the honoree, were Miss Judy Smith, Peggy Lee, Mary Deane Benson, Charles Benson, and Barbara Kay Matthes.

Miss Curl received many lovely gifts from her friends.

REMINISCENCE CLUB.

Mrs. Kenneth Strimple, 405 Taylor road, entertained eleven members and one guest of the Reminiscence club Wednesday evening. Hearts and contests were played. The club prize was awarded to Miss Anna Hunter. Other prizes were awarded to Miss Ida Hunter, Mrs Dale Ropp and Mrs. Gerrell. The October meeting will be held with Mrs W. H. Hayward, 202 Gerke avenue.

Battle Dress for Women at Work

LULUS FOR LABORERS: Here are work clothes designed by a soldier. Picard's overalls in sturdy blue denim have "downhill pants," deep slash pockets, striped trim.

By DOROTHY ROE
(AP Fashion Editor)

He's in the army now, but Private F. A. Picard, known in peacetime for his streamlined ski clothes at Sun Valley, retains his interest in clothing women for action.

His newest designs, completed just before his induction into the army last June, are working clothes for women at war now bolbing up in stores around the country.

Private Picard who is still a Swiss citizen though he wears Uncle Sam's khaki, is keeping pretty busy these days out at Halloran hospital on Staten island, where he is assigned to the Red Cross Occupational Therapy Department, working with wounded American soldiers in various types of handicraft and recreation.

Picard is well equipped for his army job having studied handicraft in his native Switzerland and having participated in an exhibit of Indian arts and crafts sponsored by the U. S. Department of the Interior at the Museum of Modern Art a couple of years ago.

Before he signed up with the army he worked for several months as a volunteer at the army hospital.

Private Picard is enthusiastic over the work he is doing at Halloran hospital, one of the government's largest units for care of soldiers returning from overseas.

In his spare time he hopes to continue to supervise the design of functional work clothes for women, explaining, "That's essential, too."

Housewife Feels She Should Be Doing War Work

By MME. QUI VIVE

There's many a wife and mother who feels a bit sad because she isn't doing much war work. She's looking after her family, taking good care of her children, keeping the family happy, and if that isn't a worth while job, what is? Housekeeping isn't the snap it used to be. The maid left long ago to work in a factory. No laundress can be had for love or money. The laundry man announces that his firm will be pleased to mangle the flat work and iron the shirts, but wearing apparel must be ironed at home.

Three meals to get, three messes of dishes to wash. The ironing board always on deck for one reason or another. The dog doesn't like his dehydrated food and sulks. Every day there's the problem of food, planning meals that will be sufficiently nourishing and won't make rationing points overlap, dipping into next week's allotment.

Window washing! There's a nice job for a woman whose lily white fingers never lifted a dust cloth. These inexperienced housekeepers are taking what comes and taking it splendidly, without grumbling. The job is tough for them because it's new; they have much to learn

The experienced boss of the domestic works has her daily schedule, a routine that doesn't vary. She knows how to save steps She can have a dozen kettles and pans on the kitchen range and the contents of each one will be ready to serve at the same time. Nothing underdone, nothing overcooked. It may have taken her years to learn how to do that

Wrestling with housekeeping problems for the first time gets a woman down, especially the woman who has always had capable help, never had to bother about details She is in a state of confusion. It is like placing a competent home manager in an office and telling her to carry on. Both jobs require experience.

We suggest that the Mrs. give herself a break now and then, not worry too much if dinner isn't tops She must find ways of saving herself She must sneak moments for relaxation and primping can't afford to go to seed This war will be over some time, as others have been finished, and when that times comes she must not look like a wreck

Let her give herself a beauty half hour at bedtime—a warm bath and rubdown, a quick scalp friction, a creaming of the face and hands. And if she's wise, she'll keep out in the sunshine with the children as much as possible

Equip First Aid Station

If, in your block's Civilian Defense activities, plans are being made for a first aid station, take a tip from hospitals and equip it with sanitary porcelain enameled hospital ware Because the enamel finish is non-porous and non-absorbent, it is recognized as one of the most sanitary wares available

To give proper treatment to any "casualties" which may occur in your vicinity, should there be an air raid, the right equipment is necessary Solution basins, medicine and instrument trays, dressing jars, a sterilizing kettle and pail are all essential items If they are made of enamel there is less danger of infection, for all first aid essentials can be kept hospital-clean in immaculate porcelain enameled ware

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

My father snapped into action immediately.

"Where is he?" he asked

"He says he is calling from the drug store next to the hotel," I replied.

"Tell him not to go to the desk, but to come up to this number and knock on the door in ten minutes," he said, and I went back to the telephone and repeated the message.

When I hung up the receiver, I found my father at my elbow. He took it down again after an instant, and spoke into it crisply.

"Adams, please!"

The guard did not answer immediately, and my father's frown grew blacker by the second. I was glad, watching those furrows deepen in his forehead, when he broke into explosive speech.

"Adams? Good! Get Winters and come directly to the suite adjoining my daughter's I'll be waiting for you. Bring your notebooks. Be here in five minutes. Goodbye."

He put up the receiver and turned to us, his eyes looking around the room, planning. I know where everyone should be stationed. Then he spoke with crisp decision

"We probably shall not need any of these precautions, but we shall use them just the same," he said. "I will station Adams in the closet here, and Winters in the bedroom with Katharine, Ronald and myself. Richard, you will remain here with Margaret, and answer the door, keeping to one side until you determine that this man is alone, and that you can handle him if necessary until Adams can reach you.

Then he addressed himself to me.

"Margaret," he said firmly, "you will take no chances. You will sit in that big chair over there, which cannot be seen from the door. The man, of course, will ask for you, and if Richard thinks it is safe for you to see him, he will bring him over to you."

"But," I interrupted him timidly, "suppose he insists on seeing me alone?"

"He may insist all he pleases," my father said sternly, with as much of a frown as he ever turns upon me, "but Richard will be at your side while the man talks to you, or—he doesn't talk, no matter what his message may be."

I wanted to shriek: "But what if it is from Marion?" feeling as though the words were already searing my lips. But I knew that any attempt to change my father's dictum would not only be useless, but would draw his displeasure down on me, something I infinitely dreaded

"Do you understand that fully, Margaret?" he said insistently, and I answered him promptly.

"Oh, yes, of course," I murmured quickly. "I will do whatever you say."

"Thank you, that will make things easier," he said with a loosening of the tight lines around his mouth "Richard, you understand what you are to do?"

"All set, sir," Dicky answered cheerfully

"Then the rest of us will leave," he said. "I will leave the bedroom door a bit ajar, so that we all can hear whatever the man has to say, and I will send Adams in to you the moment he comes. Good luck!"

He started for the door, and Ronald and Katharine followed him.

Dicky pointed melodramatically to the big chair my father had indicated.

"Wench!" he said sternly, "get into your place quickly, and no back talk!"

"Yes sir, thankee sir," I said, dropping him an impertinent curtsey. Then I went to the chair and snuggled into its depths hardly getting settled before my father brought Adams into the room A bulge in the guard's hip pocket told me that he had brought along his "note book," as my father had directed.

"Right in here, Adams," my father said, ushering him into the same closet from which I so recently had witnessed Ruth Hayes' humiliating discomfiture at Dicky's hands

"Leave the door ajar a crack, but keep hidden," my father instructed him. "You probably will not need to show yourself at all, but if you do, act quickly"

"I understand," Adams said, and my father went back into the bedroom, leaving the door slightly ajar. It was exactly on the second of the ten minutes I had named over the telephone when the expected knock came. Dicky went to the door, and opening it, said pleasantly: "You are the man who telephoned Mrs Graham? Come in."

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, September 3.

Today's auguries are most auspicious for all well-directed efforts at putting the affairs and fortunes on a firm, secure and enduring basis. It might be wise to plan on some clever and far reaching programs for accomplishing this, despite several annoying and exasperating situations, as well as sudden or unexpected resistance of a strange nature or unforeseen circumstance, Withal, new tactics and approaches may best accelerate this stabilization program, which should mean increased possessions. The more personal side of things also may enjoy enhanced happiness and progress.

Those whose birthday it is are seen to have the good fortune of being able to place their future progress, possessions and purposes upon a firm and enduring foundation, promising security and independence for the future. This against some strange antagonism or influence of sudden and surprising appearance, best manipulated by patience and restraint rather than tempest and fury.

A child born on this day may have much stability and responsibility of character, with perseverance and splendid mentality.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

TRY FOR BEST CONTRACT

After your partner has bid one suit, you have bid another, and you fear No Trumps because you have only one of the other two suits soundly stopped, it sometimes pays you to bid it, even if it is just a three-carder, in order to learn whether or not your partner can guard the fourth suit That can occasionally get you into a sound No Trump game without too much risk, especially if the three-card suit you call is a minor

	♠ 7 4 2 ♥ A Q J 6 ♦ A K J ♣ 10 9 6
♠ K Q J 6 5 ♥ K 7 2 ♦ Q 10 4 ♣ K 7	N W E S	♠ 3 ♥ 10 9 5 4 ♦ 9 6 5 4 3 ♣ 4 3 2
	♠ A 10 9 8 ♥ 8 3 ♦ 8 7 ♣ A Q J 8 5

(Dealer South vulnerable) North-South

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♠	2♥	Pass
3♣	Pass	3♦	Pass
3 NT

South bid the No Trump game confidently, after his partner's diamond bid, knowing all suits were in shape There was not much risk to the diamond call as, being a minor, it was highly unlikely South would support it, and it would be the key to a No-Trump game if South could stop spades. At another table of the same duplicate North, instead of 3-Diamonds, went to 4-Clubs and South to 5-Clubs.

After the spade K lead to the A, the No Trump declarer finessed hearts, then clubs to the K West scored two spades, but South then got the rest of the tricks, making an extra for maximum score on the deal.

The club declarer did a beautiful job in vain, as his contract was not fortuitous Winning the spade K with the A, he finessed the heart J, scored the A and K for spade discard, led the heart Q and discarded another spade. West ruffed this with the club 7, scored his spade Q and led the J. East ruffed and South over-ruffed, then dropped the club K with the A and had nothing left but good trumps. Making his contract, this nevertheless was a case of love's labor lost, since he had no chance to outscore the No Trump man

	♠ None ♥ Q 10 8 6 5 2 ♦ J 2 ♣ Q 10 9 6 5
♠ 10 8 6 4 ♥ 7 4 3 ♦ 8 7 6 ♣ 8 3 2	N W E S	♠ A Q 9 7 5 3 ♥ A K J ♦ A 10 ♣ J 7
	♠ K J 2 ♥ 9 ♦ K Q 9 5 4 3 ♣ A K 4

(Dealer, East. Neither side vulnerable.)

If East bids spades at the levels of one, two and three and then doubles South's 3-No Trumps, what suit would you lead in the West and why?

REVOLT SHOWS GERMAN 'MODEL' DOESN'T APPEAL

Danish Uprising Proves Free People Can't Stand Nazi Ideals, Theology.

By JOHN COLBURN

STOCKHOLM —(AP)— If Hitler still had any hopes that Nazi ideals and theology would attract free people, they were crushed by the people's revolt in Denmark.

Denmark was Hitler's "model protectorate." She was to be a pattern for treatment of occupied countries under Hitler's "new order." The German invasion of April 9, 1940, signaled the end of the freedom of the Danes, although Denmark was the best-treated occupied country in Europe.

For two years the Danes smarted because of the lack of resistance by their armed forces. They thought that perhaps if they had put up a fight they might have interrupted the Nazi war time table and prevented the Germans from getting such a firm hold in Norway before the British got there to help the Norwegians.

It was just a year ago this month that a turning point was reached in Denmark which eventually led the Germans to impose a military dictatorship on the little nation of fewer than 4,000,000 persons in an effort to crush a revolt that was crippling German troop transport and supply lines and jeopardizing the output of materials for the German war machine.

Organized sabotage directed by Allied agents from Britain started in Denmark in August, 1942.

It developed slowly, but became irritating to the Germans, who also discovered that as a well-treated protectorate Denmark was making little contribution to the Nazi war effort.

And the Danes, burdened with more and more encroachments on their liberties, became even less inclined to co-operate.

A simple telegraphic exchange that grew into an "international incident" gave the Nazis the opening they sought to make further inroads into Danish affairs.

Hitler sent the popular King Christian X glowing congratulations in a birthday message. King Christian replied with a curt "thank you" which Hitler considered an insult. He used the incident as a lever to demand a new Danish government more amenable to Nazi wishes.

Prime Minister Orla Buhl resigned and was succeeded by Erik De Scavenius, veteran Danish diplomat and foreign minister during the last war.

Scavenius took over the government last November. About the same time Hitler sent Werner Best to Denmark as German envoy in a change that also put Gen. Hermann Von Hannecken in command of the Nazi army of occupation.

For eight months political peace reigned in Denmark, but the pace of sabotage acts stepped up.

Sabotage became a menace to the production of materials which Germany had depended upon more and more as Allied bombardments wrecked her own industries. The Germans demanded the right to arrest and try saboteurs under Nazi law.

The government refused to grant the request and the Germans did not at first press their demands.

Sabotage marked one of two major steps leading to the current revolt. The second was the activities of the German occupation soldiers.

The first contingents of troops were well behaved. But then Germany began to send nervous veterans from the Russian front who forgot all discipline. They became embroiled in rows with Danes, who accused them of molesting women.

Sweden's discontinuance of transport of German soldiers and war materiel over Swedish railways between Germany and Norway and Finland gave the Danes a new wedge in their sabotage attacks.

Germany had to transport troops and supplies to Norway through Denmark. The Danes this month began blowing up railway lines carrying men and materials and sabotaging ships going to Norway.

Best maintained his mild collaboration policy with the Danes. But two weeks ago, while Best was away, aides of General Von Hannecken presented an ultimatum from Berlin demanding for a second time German administration of justice—with the death penalty – for saboteurs.

Neither King Christian nor the government would take the responsibility for permitting Germans to execute Danes and the request was rejected.

Meanwhile the conduct of German troops became worse. More clashes developed between soldiers and Danes, and both sides compromised in an effort to restore quiet.

German authorities promised to restrict the soldiers to quarters after certain hours. The Danish state council Aug. 21 appealed to the people for order, warning that if sabotage continued the Danes would lose coal and food obtained from Germany.

Neither action had any effect.

German troops continued to run amuck in some cities, and on the other side, sabotage diverted by reinforcements of the air-borne "saboteur commandos" intensified.

Behind the scenes, the Nazi military commander demanded that ruthless steps be taken to suppress the Danes as realization grew that internal revolt might handicap the Germans if the Allies invaded Denmark, which is on one of the shortest routes to Berlin.

Best went to Berlin for further instructions. He came back after seeing Heinrich Himmler, who has taken over the strong-arm job of crushing unrest inside Europe, and with such drastic demands that King Christian threatened to abdicate if they were accepted by the government.

Best remarked: "I'm a dead man in Berlin. My policy has failed."

Sixteen hours later, on Aug. 29, General Von Hannecken announced the military dictatorship for an awakened Denmark, which then began to fight for the first time in 79 years.

Locust Hordes Thrown Back In The Middle East

CAIRO—(U.P.)—The Anti-Locust organization of the Middle East has thrown back the hordes of locusts which threatened to invade the area this year, according to Minister of State R. G. Casey, and is now preparing to meet a renewed onslaught next year, "the greatest menace to the Middle East since the Axis."

Mr. Casey, at a press conference, described the Anti-Locust organization's intelligence system. It is very much like a police radio network, with co-ordinating centers in Jerusalem, Cairo, Wad Medani (Sudan), Nairobi and, just recently, in Heheran, where information can be exchanged with India, Afghanistan and the U.S.S.R.

The ammunition used in this campaign, sodium arsenite and bran, was distributed from strategic pools in Port Said, Port Sudan, Tel Aviv, Basra and Teheran, while the British army supplied transport, local governments gave food and medical supplies, and the RAF provided airplanes from which locusts could be "dusted" with poison.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON — Since the Quebec conference ended, White House and state department discussion of our foreign policy has been largely confined to denunciation of newspaper columnists and especially to calling Drew Pearson a liar.

President Roosevelt cut Pearson's throat from ear to ear in the most savage outburst of temper I can recall at a White House press conference.

Clapper

It is barely possible they are using Pearson to put the fear of God into all of us. Whether this was the purpose or not I will say that so far as I am concerned they have practically succeeded.

Whatever I might think about what goes on in our state department, and whatever I might think about the attitude and capabilities of some of our people in the state department, I would not wish to make criticisms that would place me in the White House list of people who, it says, are helping the enemy and are therefore virtual traitors.

It is hard in these times to know what constitutes helping the enemy. Often it is the truth that they say helps the enemy—for instance if you told about some secret military plans in advance, that would be helping the enemy. You have to take the word of the White House and the state department as to what criticism or discussion will help the enemy. They could be wrong about it but that won't help you when the president tears you apart like an ancient lion devouring a Christian martyr.

If these were normal times one might say that newspaper writers were being taken entirely too seriously around the White House and the state department. I wouldn't dare think of it now, but it is ridiculous for two big men like Roosevelt and Hull, with so many important things to be done, to allow one newspaper columnist to throw them into a week's hysterics.

I don't mean to be critical. Not at all. But ordinarily a person would say to himself that if Roosevelt and Hull were not so much worried over what a gossip columnist says, and were not so busy thinking up rough things to says about him, taking up two of Hull's press conferences and one of Roosevelt's, then perhaps—well, it mustn't be said in these times, you know.

I will hide now behind the Baltimore Sun, which carries an editorial pointing out that for about a month dispatch after dispatch has come out of Washington speculating about the resignation of Sumner Welles so that even British newspapers have taken up the speculation. The Baltimore Sun says it thinks the talk has been going on long enough, that either Welles has resigned or he has not resigned, and that the cause of our foreign relations is not advanced by the continuation of a situation which invites rumors, speculations and name-calling.

When asked about the status of Welles, Mr. Roosevelt said at his press conference that there was no news on it, that if and when there was any news on it we would be informed and he would decide when we would be informed.

* * *

But it is more refreshing to turn from these dismal gripings to the remarks of Churchill who publicly opened his heart to Stalin and spoke most eloquently for Anglo-Soviet-American collaboration. No words could have been more friendly, more packed with praise for the work that Soviet Russia is doing in the Allied cause, more hopeful of an early meeting between the heads of the three great opponents of the Hitler tyranny.

Newspaper men who asked President Roosevelt about the prospects of such a meeting were told things were coming along pretty well but they were given no background of guidance.

Possibly if the country were given more guidance from President Roosevelt there would be less conflicting speculation and bewilderment among his friends and all of those who want to see this victory mean something.

JAPS PAY FOR SHOOTING U. S. PARACHUTISTS

Former Wrestling Champ and Crew Bag Seven Zeros as They Attack Fliers.

By ART BURGESS

GUADALCANAL, Aug. 20 — (Delayed)—(AP)—Thanks to Lieut Homer W. Faucett, 1941 national AAU middleweight wrestling champion from Indiana, and the gallant crew of his Liberator bomber, the Japanese have paid dearly for firing on American fliers dangling helplessly in parachutes.

It happened after today's smashing raid by Four-engined Liberators and escorting Lightning fighters on Japan's airdrome on Bougainville in the Solomons. The total bag of Japanese planes for the day was 37.

But Faucett and his companions supplied some of the most dramatic moments on the trip back. Near Vella Lavella island, one of the Liberators was hit by pursuing Zeros. Four men parachuted from the stricken bomber.

Twenty Zeros went after the decending fliers, their guns blazing.

Lieutenant Faucett, 25, whose hometown is Hillsboro, Ind., was in a nearby formation of bombers.

"I checked with the crew first on the inter-phone, talking with every man," Faucett said.

"Pilot to turret gunner: Shall we go back?"

"Turret gunner to pilot: Let's go back."

It was that way in each case.

"All well knew there was a strong probability we would never come back," Faucett continued.

"When we turned back, one man in a chute was hanging limp after a Zero strafed him. Our gunner drove off another Zero trying the same dirty trick. Then 20 Zeros started working on us at 4,000 feet. We went down to 200 feet and dropped a life raft to the men who had jumped from the other bomber. The Zeros made a coordinated attack, using as many as six coming at us at the same time.

"We would have been shot down if it hadn't been that our gunners were good marksmen.

"When we got home, there were more than 80 bullet holes and several cannon holes in the fuselage."

But Faucett's Liberator had bagged seven out of the 20 parachute-attacking Zeros.

WOMAN SHOUTS THAT SHE SLEW WAC CORPORAL

Tells Taxi Driver To Take Her To Police; Note Studied as Clue.

INDIANAPOLIS—(INS)—A woman, allegedly intoxicated, who said she killed WAC Corporal Maoma Little Ridings was questioned by police today.

Entering a taxicab in the downtown area early this morning, Marie Simpson, 27, who was accompanied by John Wimpsett, 18, and an unidentified deaf mute, demanded that the driver take her to police headquarters.

"I killed the Ridings woman and I want to give myself up," she screamed to the driver.

She told police that she had known Robert Wolfington, 23-year-old bellboy suspect in the brutal murder, for three years.

Both the Simpson woman and Wimpsett were jailed on charges of drunkenness and vagrancy.

Wolfington was considered an important figure in the investigation because he was one of the last persons to talk with Corp. Ridings before her body was found on the floor of her room at the Claypool hotel.

It was learned by the coroner's office that Wolfington, who was discharged from the navy for physical reasons and who is subject to seizures, attempted to commit suicide in a downtown restaurant July 13, 1942.

The suicide attempt was made soon after the bellboy was separated from his wife.

"I have no one now and no one cares for me," Wolfington said to a fellow Claypool bellboy, Alfred Bayne, jr., according to the latter's testimony before the coroner. Bayne said he delivered "cokes" and ice to Corporal Ridings and saw her in company with a "black-haired woman in black" in her hotel room a short time before Wolfington visited the room.

Detectives studied a penciled note containing the names of "Bob" and "Maoma" as a possible clue to the woman's murder. It said: "Bob: Maoma Redding returning. Will be at hotel at the 28th. Make an early visit. Don't worry."

There was no signature.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—In one of the more resounding moments of his visit with Mr Churchill, President Roosevelt professed "everlasting" anger at those who attack the Atlantic Charter and its four freedoms and said that if they had been around at the time they would have tried to discredit the Declaration of Independence, the Magna Charta and the Commandments.

This is the second time, the first occasion having been his Washington's birthday address last February, that the president has modestly classified this writ of his and Churchill's with the Declaration of Independence and the Decalogue and inferentially placed himself and the British prime minister in very fast company, considering the authorship of those documents, particularly the Ten Commandments in the presentation of which Moses was not the valid author but only a stenographer.

Pegler

I believe this is the first time the Magna Charta has been cited as a comparable work.

Such pride of authorship is seldom encountered even in Hollywood or around the Stork club, but it is interesting to observe that Mr. Churchill, himself an old-time professional journalist, who turned out many a pot-boiler to keep himself supplied with those chair-leg double-coronas, apparently regards the Charter as just something that he helped to toss off while riding at anchor on a battleship. He has had little to say about it since it was first released and, although he is recognized as a first-class angry man in matters by which he sets particular store, skepticism regarding the Charter has moved him to no large annoyance or boastfulness.

Josef Stalin, the man who wasn't there, may have thought it a tactless document in view of the fact that, by inference, it might be construed as a criticism of the governmental processes of Russia with which, however, he may be sure, the American people and the British have no intention to interfere.

In fairness, it would seem that if a belief in, and loyalty to, the Atlantic Charter is to be made binding on Americans, the step should be taken formally by congress because up to now it is merely a statement of ideals which are lovely, although unrealized as yet anywhere in the world, and of objectives which, in the belief of many patriotic but practical Americans, he far beyond the range of the guns with which it is purposed to enforce them.

If, however, congress, after consulting the people and debating the case should add this document as amended to the required articles of our national devotion, then the people no doubt would say "so be it" and the Atlantic Charter would take its place, appropriately framed, in the town halls and public schools. That it might be helpfully amended nobody but a very temperamental author would deny offhand, for the Magna Charta itself was a limited victory with little concern for the common man and was amended much. And the United States Constitution was unacceptable until it had first been fortified with that Bill of Rights of which Henry Wallace has spoken in vague disparagement within the last year. The Ten Commandments went as was.

And where, incidentally, is the Atlantic Charter? The actual document, itself, would be a treasure beyond price if the president's estimate is correct, but I have no recollection of ever having seen even a reproduction in print and, in common I suppose with most others who are bound to revere it under pain of the president's "everlasting" anger, have no idea whether it was written by hand on skin or parchment, or typed on bond by a staff clerk on board a British man-of-war, with carbons for all hands 'round.

Who got the top copy and who the first carbon, are they authenticated, where are they and have the original shorthand notes, and the rough copies with the back-tracking and corrections been preserved for posterity? These questions naturally present themselves and I offer them to the OWI with deep respect.

HOUSES GOING UP

Permits Issued For Building of Five Residences.

Permits for the construction of five houses for war workers in Mansfield, the first extensive building in the city under the new housing program, were issued yesterday at the city building.

The homes, expected to cost $5,000 each, will be erected in the 200 and 300 blocks of Poplar street and the 400 block of Rembrant street. Each will have four rooms.

The building permits were obtained by L. E. Dillon, chief clerk of the county rationing board, and B. G. Campbell, Mansfield real estate dealer.

Priorities for materials to build the homes have been given to the prospective builders under the government housing project which will permit the construction of more than 100 new home units in Mansfiled and Shelby.

RUSH TO OBTAIN MATERNITY AID

1,731 Ohioans Apply For Share In Government Program, Markwith Reveals.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio's maternity care program for wives of noncommissioned service men, after three weeks' operation, has proved beyond question that "it fills a need and it's popular," State Health Director R. H. Markwith said today.

"We have been so deluged with applications for maternity care," he said, "that we probably must revise our original estimate that the program would cost the federal government $60,000 a month.

Since Aug. 12, when the plan became operative, 703 applications out of 1,731 have been approved. These were expedited because the stork either already had arrived or soon would—so action on the other 1,000 applications necessarily was held up."

Thus the health department started September with a backlog of 1,000 cases, all presumably eligible for the $40 doctors' fee and up to 14 days' hospitalization. Uncle Sam is willing to pay a maximum of $6.50 daily for hospital ward care.

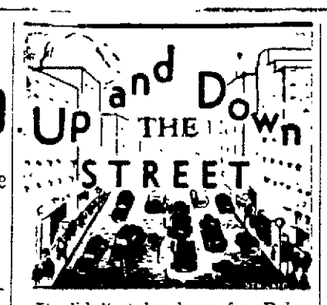
Ohio received an initial allowance of $20,000 from the U. S. Children's bureau, but Markwith asked two emergency allocations. The bureau responded with a second $20,000 grant, then a $30,000 allocation.

"Once we catch up with the stork that serves service men," Markwith said, "the program should level off. We have been earmarking $100 per applicant, but this probably will settle to between $85 and $90."

The director said more than 1,200 doctors already had indicated in applications that they would participate in the program.

KILLED BY FALL

CLEVELAND—(AP)—A fall from a 50 foot scaffold killed Clement M. DeCroes, 45, who had supervised stone construction on many large buildings, including the Mellon National Gallery of Art in Washington.



It didn't take long for Police Chief Meade K. Bates to decide that a letter in the police mail with a certain comic strip character on the front belonged to Patrolman George Yoakam. The letter from Yoakam's son, Cpl. George A. Yoakam at Camp Rucker, Ala., had no name on the front. The envelope had the word "Patrolman" at the top and beneath it was an accurate drawing of "Pappy Yokum" of the comic strips, drawn in color and with the characteristic chin whiskers. Cpl. Yoakam was a painter before he went into the armed forces.

BRICKER HITS BUREAUCRACY

Urges Return of Functions Absorbed By Government To Private Capital.

(By International News Service)

CINCINNATI — Return to private capital as soon as practical of those functions absorbed by government was advocated today by Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio as a post-war stimulant for "assuring employment in private enterprise of the greatest number."

Addressing the National Association of Securities Commissioners in Cincinnati last night, Gov. Bricker pleaded for the "recapture of the spirit of free enterprise" as one of America's post-war objectives. He said:

"Only through strengthening of private enterprise by government can we encourage business and national development.

Gov. Bricker called for the elimination of "bureaucracy" and the creation of a sound tax program to stimulate post-war purchasing power.

Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock Exchange, told the association: "If our system of free enterprise operates in a healthful atmosphere, the capital markets themselves will have little to worry about.

"Reasonable regulation will present no problem, and on the other hand, these markets will have little excuse for existence, no matter how free and untrammeled they may be, if our enterprise system loses its capacity to serve society."

CLEARINGS LAG

Bank Figures Continue To Fall Behind 1942.

Mansfield bank clearings in August continued to lag behind last year despite increased industrial employment and higher earnings.

The city's banks last month cleared $8,791,737, bringing the total for the year to $70,989,935, nearly $11,000,000 under the figure for a similar period in 1942, John Swank, secretary of the Clearing House association, reported today.

August clearings were approximately $500,000 below the July totals and more than $800,000 under the total for August, 1942.

Heavier buying of war bonds and stamps and less spending for non-essentials were given as the reason for the downward trend in clearings.

WOMAN SHOUTS THAT SHE SLEW WAC CORPORAL

Tells Taxi Driver To Take Her To Police; Note Studied as Clue.

INDIANAPOLIS—(INS)—A woman, allegedly intoxicated, who said she killed WAC Corporal Maoma Little Ridings was questioned by police today.

Entering a taxicab in the downtown area early this morning, Marie Simpson, 27, who was accompanied by John Wimpsett, 18, and an unidentified deaf mute, demanded that the driver take her to police headquarters.

"I killed the Ridings woman and I want to give myself up," she screamed to the driver.

She told police that she had known Robert Wolfington, 23-year-old bellboy suspect in the brutal murder, for three years.

Both the Simpson woman and Wimpsett were jailed on charges of drunkenness and vagrancy.

Wolfington was considered an important figure in the investigation because he was one of the last persons to talk with Corp. Ridings before her body was found on the floor of her room at the Claypool hotel.

It was learned by the coroner's office that Wolfington, who was discharged from the navy for physical reasons and who is subject to seizures, attempted to commit suicide in a downtown restaurant July 13, 1942.

The suicide attempt was made soon after the bellboy was separated from his wife.

"I have no one now and no one cares for me," Wolfington said to a fellow Claypool bellboy, Alfred Bayne, jr., according to the latter's testimony before the coroner. Bayne said he delivered "cokes" and ice to Corporal Ridings and saw her in company with a "black-haired woman in black" in her hotel room a short time before Wolfington visited the room.

Detectives studied a penciled note containing the names of "Bob" and "Maoma" as a possible clue to the woman's murder. It said: "Bob: Maoma Redding returning. Will be at hotel at the 28th. Make an early visit. Don't worry."

There was no signature.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—In one of the more resounding moments of his visit with Mr. Churchill, President Roosevelt professed "everlasting" anger at those who attack the Atlantic Charter and its four freedoms and said that if they had been around at the time they would have tried to discredit the Declaration of Independence, the Magna Charta and the Commandments.

This is the second time, the first occasion having been his Washington's birthday address last February, that the president has modestly classified this writ of his and Churchill's with the Declaration of Independence and the Decalogue and inferentially placed himself and the British prime minister in very fast company, considering the authorship of those documents, particularly the Ten Commandments in the presentation of which Moses was not the valid author but only a stenographer. I believe this is the first time the Magna Charta has been cited as a comparable work.

Pegler

Such pride of authorship is seldom encountered even in Hollywood or around the Stork club, but it is interesting to observe that Mr. Churchill, himself an old-time professional journalist, who turned out many a pot-boiler to keep himself supplied with those chair-leg double-coronas, apparently regards the Charter as just something that he helped to toss off while riding at anchor on a battleship. He has had little to say about it since it was first released and, although he is recognized as a first-class angry man in matters by which he sets particular store, skepticism regarding the Charter has moved him to no large annoyance or boastfulness.

Josef Stalin, the man who wasn't there, may have thought it a tactless document in view of the fact that, by inference, it might be construed as a criticism of the governmental processes of Russia with which, however, he may be sure, the American people and the British have no intention to interfere.

In fairness, it would seem that if a belief in, and loyalty to, the Atlantic Charter is to be made binding on Americans, the step should be taken formally by congress because up to now it is merely a statement of ideals which are lovely, although unrealized as yet anywhere in the world, and of objectives which, in the belief of many patriotic but practical Americans, lie far beyond the range of the guns with which it is purposed to enforce them.

If, however, congress, after consulting the people and debating the case should add this document as amended to the required articles of our national devotion, then the people no doubt would say "so be it" and the Atlantic Charter would take its place, appropriately framed, in the town halls and public schools. That it might be helpfully amended nobody but a very temperamental author would deny offhand, for the Magna Charta itself was a limited victory with little concern for the common man and was amended much. And the United States Constitution was unacceptable until it had first been fortified with that Bill of Rights of which Henry Wallace has spoken in vague disparagement within the last year. The Ten Commandments went as was.

And where, incidentally, is the Atlantic Charter? The actual document, itself, would be a treasure beyond price if the president's estimate is correct, but I have no recollection of ever having seen even a reproduction in print and, in common I suppose with most others who are bound to revere it under pain of the president's "everlasting" anger, have no idea whether it was written by hand on skin or parchment, or typed on bond by a staff clerk on board a British man-of-war, with carbons for all hands 'round.

Who got the top copy and who the first carbon, are they authenticated, where are they and have the original shorthand notes, and the rough copies with the back-tracking and corrections been preserved for posterity? These questions naturally present themselves and I offer them to the OWI with deep respect.

RUSH TO OBTAIN MATERNITY AID

1,731 Ohioans Apply For Share In Government Program, Markwith Reveals.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Ohio's maternity care program for wives of noncommissioned service men, after three weeks' operation, has proved beyond question that "it fills a need and it's popular," State Health Director R. H. Markwith said today.

"We have been so deluged with applications for maternity care," he said, "that we probably must revise our original estimate that the program would cost the federal government $60,000 a month.

Since Aug. 12, when the plan became operative, 703 applications out of 1,731 have been approved. These were expedited because the stork either already had arrived or soon would—no action on the other 1,000 applications necessarily was held up."

Thus the health department started September with a backlog of 1,000 cases, all presumably eligible for the $40 doctors' fee and up to 14 days' hospitalization. Uncle Sam is willing to pay a maximum of $6.50 daily for hospital ward care.

Ohio received an initial allowance of $20,000 from the U. S. Children's bureau, but Markwith asked two emergency allocations. The bureau responded with a second $20,000 grant, then a $30,000 allocation.

"Once we catch up with the stork that serves service men," Markwith said, "the program should level off. We have been earmarking $100 per applicant, but this probably will settle to between $85 and $90."

The director said more than 1,200 doctors already had indicated in applications that they would participate in the program.

KILLED BY FALL

CLEVELAND—(AP)—A fall from a 50 foot scaffold killed Clement M. DeCroes, 45, who had supervised stone construction on many large buildings, including the Mellon National Gallery of Art in Washington.

It didn't take long for Police Chief Meade K. Bates to decide that a letter in the police mail with a certain comic strip character on the front belonged to Patrolman George Yoakam. The letter from Yoakam's son, Cpl. George A. Yoakam at Camp Rucker, Ala., had no name on the front. The envelope had the word "Patrolman" at the top and beneath it was an accurate drawing of "Pappy Yokum" of the comic strips, drawn in color and with the characteristic chin whiskers. Cpl. Yoakam was a painter before he went into the armed forces.

One Mansfield housewife is wondering if a dealer someplace between Georgia and Mansfield didn't make quite a profit on a bushel of peaches. She bought a bushel of peaches the other day for $5.50. When she had taken all the peaches out, she found a note in the bottom of the basket asking whoever bought the peaches for canning to let him know how much they had paid for them. The writer said that he had sold them for 85 cents.

Even the best of citizens would find it hard to resist the temptation of a car with its tank filled to the brim with gasoline and the keys in the switch. And it seems that one person found the temptation more than he could cope with. Last evening Elmer Hamaker, 50 Chilton avenue reported to Sheriff Frank E. Robinson his car had been stolen. The car, tank full of gas and keys in it, was taken from the parking lot at the rear of the office building at Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company sometime between 6:30 and 9 p. m., the owner reported.

BRICKER HITS BUREAUCRACY

Urges Return of Functions Absorbed By Government To Private Capital.

(By International News Service)

CINCINNATI — Return to private capital as soon as practical of those functions absorbed by government was advocated today by Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio as a post-war stimulant for "assuring employment in private enterprise of the greatest number."

Addressing the National Association of Securities Commissioners in Cincinnati last night, Gov. Bricker pleaded for the "recapture of the spirit of free enterprise" as one of America's post-war objectives. He said:

"Only through strengthening of private enterprise by government can we encourage business and national development.

Gov. Bricker called for the elimination of "bureaucracy" and the creation of a sound tax program to stimulate post-war purchasing power.

Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock Exchange, told the association: "If our system of free enterprise operates in a healthful atmosphere, the capital markets themselves will have little to worry about.

"Reasonable regulation will present no problem, and on the other hand, these markets will have little excuse for existence, no matter how free and untrammeled they may be, if our enterprise system loses its capacity to serve society."

MAKE RARE FIND

Girl Scouts Discover Early Indian Rock Shelter.

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y.—(INS)—A group of Girl Scouts headed by 10-year-old Betty Lou Norris, of Brooklyn, today was credited with making one of the most important archeological finds in the Hudson valley.

While on a hiking trip, the youngsters stumbled upon an early Indian rock shelter which, according to William H. Carr, director of the Bear Mountain Trailside museum, dates back more than 500 years.

CLEARINGS LAG

Bank Figures Continue To Fall Behind 1942.

Mansfield bank clearings in August continued to lag behind last year despite increased industrial employment and higher earnings.

The city's banks last month cleared $8,791,737, bringing the total for the year to $70,989,935, nearly $11,000,000 under the figure for a similar period in 1942, John Swank, secretary of the Clearing House association, reported today.

August clearings were approximately $500,000 below the July totals and more than $800,000 under the total for August, 1942.

Heavier buying of war bonds and stamps and less spending for non-essentials were given as the reason for the downward trend in clearings.

HOUSES GOING UP

Permits Issued For Building of Five Residences.

Permits for the construction of five houses for war workers in Mansfield, the first extensive building in the city under the new housing program, were issued yesterday at the city building.

The homes, expected to cost $5,000 each, will be erected in the 200 and 300 blocks of Poplar street and the 400 block of Rembrant street. Each will have four rooms.

The building permits were obtained by L. E. Dillon, chief clerk of the county rationing board, and B. G. Campbell, Mansfield real estate dealer.

Priorities for materials to build the homes have been given to the prospective builders under the government housing project which will permit the construction of more than 100 new home units in Mansfiled and Shelby.
